Hancock Planning & Zoning Board shoots down 'gentlemen's club' plan

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

A stand of pine trees on Hwy. 90 will not be replaced by a "gentlemen's club," at least not yet. The Hancock County Planning and Zoning Board voted unanimously on Thursday to deny a special exception permit for the club to Magnolia I Inc. Investors in Magnolia I are Kirk and Kristine Ladner, Jeffrey Jassby and Emmett Hotard, all of Diamondhead. Board president Lynn Bell made the motion Thursday to deny the permit.

Magnolia I's attorney Virgil Gillespie said the decision went exactly like he thought it would.

The Hancock County Circuit Court is going hi-tech. By Monday, the courtroom should be wired with many new devices that should greatly enhance evidence presentation. These include a 15-inch wall-mounted plasma-screen monitor, computer hookups and a DVD/VHS system. Installation began on the project last week.

Final report confirms DuPont not polluting water

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

A final version of a previously released public health consultation on the DuPont DeLisle plant reiterated the findings of the preliminary study, that the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry has categorized the site as "no public health hazard" to underground drinking water.

"We are grateful that they have confirmed this for us," said plant manager Pat Nichols. "We felt confident with the preliminary findings, but could not be sure until the final report."

Nichols said that the ATSDR report was the fourth such finding, following earlier reports from the Environmental Protection Agency, Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality, and the Mississippi State Health Department.

The final version of the report, released in July, contains a summary of the public comments and the ATSDR's response to those comments.

"We wanted to let the community know what was commented on and what the responses were," said Environmental Health Scientist James Durant.

Thursday that the area between their quiet residential neighborhood and Bayou Caddy was about to change.

Ladner said he was planning a series of high rise condominium projects in the area that would stretch all along the beach. But first he will have to gain approval for those projects.

On Thursday, he and partner Russell Elliot, who together make up South Beach Casino & Resort, LLC., failed to gain approval for a proposed hotel and casino complex that they planned to locate at the foot of Poinset Ave., in Clermont Harbor.

The two were requesting a zoning change from C-1 Neighborhood Commercial to Casino Use District and a variance that would allow them to locate the proposed project on 4.2 acres instead of the 5 acres required by zoning ordinances.

Commissioner Lynn Bell

introduced a motion to deny the request based on that ordinance.

The motion carried unanimously except for Commissioner C. A. Russ, who voted against the denial. South Beach has already filed an appeal to the decision.

In answer to questions posed by the board, Ladner described the project as a 14-story hotel complex with a gaming establishment across the street.

When questioned about the "adult type entertainment" and "adult style shows" mentioned in his permit application, Ladner said that he had Vegas-style floor shows planned for both the casino and hotel complex stages.

Entertainers would not be completely nude, Ladner said, but would offer adult style shows similar to those at other casinos.

Ladner said the complex would be open 24 hours a day and be illuminated with light green, blue and yellow lights to bring out the colors of the beach.

An illuminated, rapidly changing sign would advertise upcoming events on each side of an elevated breezeway over Beach Blvd.

The permit application for the hotel complex indicates a 200-room hotel that will consist of two 14-story wings and a parking garage. The third and fourth levels would connect the hotel to the casino complex by the elevated breezeway across Beach Blvd.

Neighbors in the surrounding Clermont Harbor did not share Ladner's enthusiasm for the project. Many were worried about the close proximity to the Clermont Harbor Pier, many more said that such a large project would ruin the quiet, family-oriented neighborhood.

Issachar Nichols said he was worried about the danger that extra traffic would pose to children who frequently ride their bicycles down Poinset Ave. to the sea wall to fish.

"The neighborhood is one of the few areas remaining where an ordinary person still has access to the beach," said Nichols.

Ina Day said the complex would be only four blocks from her church.

Day said that such massive development would destroy the bird habitat that the area has become. Many bird watchers come to the harbor area, Day said.

Director of the Clermont Harbor Civic Association Millie Usher said the project would ruin the tranquility of wonderful sunrises and sunsets and be highly incompatible with the neighborhood.

"I can't even envision how something like this can even be under consideration," said Dennis Kern.

Club -- no nudes

script, I could have," said Gillespie. "But if I were a local official, I probably would have voted the same way."

He said Magnolia I would appeal the decision all the way to the court system because investors did not expect the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to approve the permit either. Gillespie went immediately to file an appeal to supervisors and a copy of that appeal was in building official Mickey Lagasse's hands before the end of the meeting.

Local ministers Al Green of the First Baptist Church and Jeb Banashak of the First Assembly of God said they, too, would stay with the issue for as "far and as long as it takes" to get a final decision, they said. They said they were both delighted with the decision.

Commissioners based their decision on evidence presented by Magnolia I and its attorney, as well as statements from 51 citizens and citizens groups - and numerous petitions and letters - all in opposition to the club. The decision was also based on a professional opinion issued by Bill Hessell of Hessell and Associates, Urban Planning Consultants.

Hessell said that the intended use was not a use by right, as previously stated by Gillespie, but rather an issue which required that the "burden of proof" be a responsibility of the applicants to show that the use meets every aspect of a special exception.

That proof was not shown, Hessell said in his report. Among other points, Hessell said that the applicants showed no proof that the business would be in harmony with the neighborhood, that it would not create more safety and crime problems for the County and neighboring cities, or that it would not adversely affect property values.

Hessell also said that because the business would be located within 100 feet of a direct access street to a large subdivision, applicants would need to show factual documentation on how they planned to protect underage persons, who could be walking near the site, from being exposed to a sexually oriented business.

Hessell recommended the denial of the application based on the lack of supporting documentation to satisfy the requirements in the county zoning ordinance.

On Tuesday, the Waveland Board of Aldermen voted to send a resolution stating their support to the board for a denial of the permits for both of the proposed strip clubs. Aldermen said that the clubs were not what they considered appropriate at the gateways to the community.

Ward 3 Alderman Brian Schmidt voted against the resolution.

not yet have a building permit, they have submitted drainage plans and architectural drawings to the Hancock County Planning and Zoning Commission, and were granted preliminary site approval.

Hancock county building officials said that they will not have to go before the planning commission again to get the actual permit.

The Diamondhead Village center will cover about 37,000 square feet on Kalani Drive, just north of the I-10 exit. It will be located directly across from the Diamondhead Plaza shopping center.

In addition to the Winn-Dixie, the shopping center will have room for several more retail stores.

Deborah DeLong, of the Diamondhead Property Owner's Association, said most people were happy at the prospect of new stores in close proximity to the area. "We're all thrilled with the idea of having new retailers in Diamondhead," she said.

Shooting Sports Foundation has partnered with Lt. Governor Amy Tuck and local law enforcement to distribute more than 275,000 free gun locks in Mississippi as part of the national Project ChildSafe (PCS) initiative. PCS is designed to help make homes with firearms safer by raising awareness about responsible firearm ownership and storage.

An expansion of NSSF's Project HomeSafe, Project ChildSafe is funded by a $50 million dollar grant from the Department of Justice and will provide nearly 20 million free gunlocks and firearm safety educational materials to families in all 50 states, the five U.S. territories and District of Columbia.

In 2002, Project HomeSafe succeeded in distributing 2.4 million safety kits to 44 states and has significantly raised awareness of firearms safety and responsibility. "We are proud to say that, since its grassroots beginning in 1999, Project HomeSafe became the largest, most comprehensive firearms safety education program in the nation thanks to the enthusiastic support from high-ranking government officials and law enforcement departments in communities across America," said Doug Painter, president of the National Shooting Sports Foundation.

A PCS representative will drop off the cable style gunlocks and educational materials at each department to then be distributed throughout each community by the local law enforcement.

Durant said there were several questions about possible exposure to high levels of the heavy metal manganese through drinking water. A person would typically be exposed to higher levels through their drinking water, said Durant.

The ATSDR will request further testing at some homes in the DeLisle community, Durant said, to try to find the source of a slightly higher level of lead and copper in drinking water at those sites. Possible sources could be lead solder on pipes or leaking septic systems, he said.

The ATSDR is continuing to gather information on two other community concerns, air emissions and dioxins at the plant site. Durant could not put a date on future public hearings, but did say that a report on dioxins would be released before the next public hearing.

Hancock School Board creates new 'Opportunity Center'

BY JOHN WATERMAN
 Staff Writer

The Hancock County Board of Education voted Thursday to establish a new Opportunity Center to accommodate students in the district's special education and alternative studies programs.

The new facility will be located across from Hancock North Central Elementary, in the old Federal Education Office, and will require one full-time and one part-time position.

That decision comes on the heels of the board's choice to pull out of a consortium with the Pearl River and Picayune school districts, which allowed each district to utilize the other's resources, particularly in regard to special education programs.

Superintendent David Kopf said that he wanted to initiate the program so that Hancock County children would be able to attend special education classes in the district.

Kopf said that the district would still save the $21,000 that it would have spent on membership in the Pearl River/Picayune consortium, as funds for the Opportunity Center come from the district's own special education budget.

According to minimum standards set in place by the "No Child Left Behind" act, all teachers must be accredited in the areas that they teach. Kopf said that the teachers working at the Opportunity Center were not just accredited in special education, but in many other subjects as well.

"We wanted to go ahead and make sure (the students) are receiving the maximum level of instruction," Kopf said.

The board voted 4-1 in favor of establishing the center. Board President Peggy Ladner voted against the matter, because she said that she had not heard about the plans until the meeting, and would have liked more time to discuss the issue.

The Opportunity Center will be able to accommodate up to 18 students, but at this time, only six are slated to attend classes there.

Kopf said he hoped to have the center up and running this Monday.

Other matters before the board included:

- Renewed Property Main-Wind & Hail Insurance in the amount of $23,977 with Treutel Insurance Agency and Lloyds of London.

- Renewed boiler and machinery insurance in the amount of $5,672 with Treutel Insurance Agency and Lloyds of London.

- Approved a recommendation to enter into a contract with Success For All for kindergarten and first grade at Gulfview Elementary School in the amount of $24,625.

- Paid $86,121.58 to Moran Hauling, Inc. for renovations at Hancock North Central Elementary School.

- Larry Peterson, district one, is soliciting candidates to run for his seat on the Hancock County School Board, as he will not be seeking re-election.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

Remember every Hancock veteran

I spoke to Bill Taylor, a committee person with the proposed World War II Memorial for Hancock County and was told he has received several more names this past week.

In last Sunday's edition of the Echo, we published more than 1,450 names of men and women who were Hancock County residents, or considered the county their home during World War II.

The roster includes men who served in Army, Army Air Corps, Army National Guard, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, Navy and U.S. Merchant Marines; plus ladies who were in WACS (Women's Army Corps), WAVES (Navy), SPARS, (Coast Guard), Women Marine Corps, WASP (Woman's Air Force Service) Pilots; as well as U.S. Army and Navy Nurse Corps.

Taylor now says the roster has reached 1500 and he feels more names are to come.

This is a great project and is the brain child of Bay St. Louis resident Leo Seal, Jr., who recently received permission for the WWII Monument to be placed on the grounds of the Hancock County Courthouse. Taylor, who is commander of American Legion Post 139 is assisting along with several other veterans.

If you know of a person who was not included in last week's roster; write to Bill Taylor, 448 St. Charles Street, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Give the persons name, branch of service and service period.

The service period being used is between September 3, 1939 and September 2, 1945.

As some of you know, a Merchant Marine Academy was located at Henderson Point, (the Baptist Assembly property now), so Seal feels there are many more than the five names they have collected thus far who were Merchant Marines during the service period.

On Thursday evening from 5 to 7 p.m., the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's August Business After Hours will take place at the Bay St. Louis Hancock County Library.

This month's sponsors are Dupont and the Library Foundation of Hancock County.

Whenever one of these affairs is held at the Bay Library, it is always extra special and this one will be too, I am told.

There will be food, fun, door prizes, music, friends and networking.

So, don't forget the date, Thursday, August 14; time, 5 to 7 p.m.; at the Bay Library.

Educating, entertaining and enriching

For vacation we often think about going to the beach, the mountains or to other parts of the country. But let's not forget all the great things that we can see on a short road trip right here in Mississippi things that can entertain, educate and enrich us, like Mississippi's many historic, cultural or just-for-fun places which form a colorful mosaic that few states can rival.

For instance, I recently spent a great day in Corinth to dedicate a tourist destination that will help Americans of all ages better understand a pivotal point in America's history - the Siege and Battle of Corinth. I worked in the Senate to secure federal funding totaling almost $10 million for this new building which houses a Civil War Interpretive Center - a themed display of historical items aimed specifically at helping people better comprehend the characters and events of this battlefield's past.

Investing this kind of time and money in Mississippi's historic and cultural sites is important for three reasons. First, we've got to better educate Americans about our nation's history. Like many of you reading this newspaper, I'm very concerned about our fellow Americans who don't do much reading, who can't name any of our Founding Fathers or place World War II within the right decade or even within the right 50 years. America's rich and unique history is a chronicle of mankind's political and social evolution from tyranny to liberty. It's a prerequisite for understanding our place in the world and to fully appreciating our privileges and rights as Americans. It's a history too rich to be dull and too important to be overlooked. Facilities like the Corinth Interpretive Center will help adults and students really understand the people who lived, fought and died there 140 years ago, and why they did it.

Investing time and money in Mississippi's historic and cultural sites is also about capitalizing on Mississippi's tourism economy. When we spend money in our state, that helps support jobs for our fellow Mississippians. The same is true when we attract visitors from elsewhere who infuse money into our local economies. The Vicksburg National Battlefield alone is now hosting an astounding one million visitors annually. That represents a huge economic impact, not just for Warren County and the surrounding area, but for our entire state.

We also must preserve our historic and cultural sites. It's been an honor for me to help secure federal funds to preserve our lesser known or up-and-coming historic and cultural treasures as well, like the Coast's George Ohr Museum which showcases this world-renowned potter's internationally acclaimed works. And, let's not forget Hattiesburg's effort to preserve their historic depot and downtown. And, I'm supporting efforts to build a new visitors center at Stennis Space Center near Interstate 10, so folks can easily see items related to our nation's space program - from the role the center played in the moon landing, to the shuttle program and beyond.

Right now, Governor Haley Barbour and his economic development chief

Strip bars will only add to our burden

Editor,
Subject: Stripper Bars.
The question "What next?" comes to mind, however, if past experience proves true "what next" will be more scurvy than the ongoing proposals for, call them what you will it's still, skin trade. Whose parents, daughters and sons will be going on those stages?

Perhaps the owners of the proposed strip bars could be required to remove their own clothing, while dancing to selected music, in order to present their case to the licensing board and one open to voting public meeting? Can one think of a better way to prove an honest belief in the skin trade as being gentlemanly, ladylike, encouraging in development of morals, uplifting and inspiring, not to even mention bringing more money into the county. (please read county as owner pockets)

If these strip bars are opened our towns will be just like all the other worn down, worn out, litter strewn, public profanity-screaming, drunk and drugged, dead beat hangout beach towns. I saw a drug deal going on inside the Waveland Wal-Mart store last week. I froze. Could not move. Did they see me seeing them? What to do? I'm a senior, female and walk with a cane. Am I going to leap to the fore, make a citizen arrest, hold these guys captive with my

Letters to the Editor

my cane? Same week, Wal-mart parking lot around 8:30 - 9 p.m., still daylight, young men gathered in parking lot near gas station. Loud, bass thumping music playing, one of the boys stood with legs spread holding and shaking his still infants, genitalia. All this to say our police forces are working around the clock now to try and make a better, safer place for us to live why don't we help them stop the madness before adding strip bars to their already massive burdens?

Sincerely,
Sam Carver

Hancock's Boehnel commits to USM

BY JOSEPH W. GEE II
Staff Writer

Ashley Boehnel, a senior forward for the defending Class 5A state champion Hancock Lady Hawks, has verbally committed to continue her basketball career at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg.

The 5-10 standout averaged roughly 14 points, 4 steals, 7 rebounds, and 2 assists per game as Hancock ran to a 29-7 overall record and claimed their third state title. Last season's championship was the first one for the traditionally dominant hoops program since consecutive state titles in 1979-80.

Hancock head coach Pam Slayton commented, "Ashley Boehnel was a key player for us last season and will continue to be very vital for our team this year. She is a very creative and instinctive player. Ashley wanted to forego her other visits during the recruiting process because she feels USM is the place to be. The hiring of Joye Lee-McNelis at USM is a shot in the arm for that program and Ashley wanted to be a part of that from the beginning."

state's top recruits entering the 2004-05 season and is the third player that Hancock has sent to the Division I ranks in as many years. Devin Necaise signed with Memphis in 2003 and Brooke Necaise went to Southeastern Louisiana last year.

Boehnel will sign a full athletic scholarship with the Lady Golden Eagles in November during the early signing period.

Boehnel will play for Joye Lee-McNelis at USM who is one of Hancock County's all-time greatest hardwood players. She starred at Hancock on their state title teams of 1979-80 before continuing her success as a player at USM from 1980-84. She is currently the sixth all-time leading scorer at USM and was inducted into the school's Sports Hall of Fame in 1997.

From there, Lee-McNelis entered the coaching ranks and for the past 13 years she has guided the University of Memphis Lady Tigers before coming back home to take the reigns at USM. Lee-McNelis has a head coaching record of 229-156.

Lott -- see Mississippi first

Leland Speed are trying to get our state to better realize and capitalize on our historical and cultural assets and our just-for-fun tourist attractions, too. It's an effort long overdue.

Mississippi's attractions are many when you think about it. The Delta was the birthplace of the blues, and folks from around the world migrate to places like the Crossroads at Clarksdale or the Delta Blues Museum. Jackson has hosted some of the most significant artistic displays from Europe, including the Glory of Baroque Dresden exhibit now on display at the Mississippi Arts Pavilion. You won't find a better collection of antebellum architecture than you'll find while touring the homes of Natchez or riding around old river towns like Port Gibson. If motors are your thing, Tupelo, in addition to being the well-known birthplace of Elvis, now has one of the country's nicest vintage auto museums. Jackson, Harrison and Hancock counties are preparing for "Cruisin the Coast" this October, a car show which in just a few years has morphed into one of the country's best attended, attracting more and more people each year.

So, before you spend your cash out-of-state for a weekend or week-long getaway, think first about the sites and sounds of Mississippi. You'll be supporting your neighbors, and you'll be surprised just how educational, enriching and entertaining Mississippi can be.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions or comments about this column. Write to: U.S. Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (Attn: Press Office)

In Memory of Frank J. Perniciaro

August 15, 1959 - August 8, 2003

One year ago, you were taken home to heaven, dear one; Oh, so happy and so bright! There is perfect joy and beauty In that everlasting light!

All the pain and grief is over, Every restless tossing passed; You are now at peace forever, Safely home in heaven at last.

And he came Himself to meet you In that way so hard to tread; And with Jesus' arm to lean on, Could we have one doubt or dread?

Then I must not grieve so sorely, For I love you dearly still; I try to look beyond earth's shadows, Pray to trust our Father's Will.

There is work still waiting for us, So we must not idly stand; Doing it now while life remains We shall rest in Jesus' land.

When that work is all completed, He will gently call us Home; Oh, the glory of that meeting, Oh, the joy you'll have to see us come!

Happy 45th Birthday
Happy 13th Anniversary

I work hard to keep your spirit, memories and humor alive! You son is happy and healthy - he is the light of my life! He is the one who keeps me alive! Your daughter has made you a Paw-Paw! A girl! I picture you playing with her all the time. You should be proud of your other son also. He is achieving so much!

We love you always, Your wife, Kimberly; Robin, Jordan and Quentin, your children; and Loren, your new granddaughter.

Applauding the Angels

Florida's team got a standing ovation Wednesday evening as players were given their medals for placing third in the Tim Neely Hancock County Classic Dixie Angels World Series at the Bay St. Louis Athletic Complex. South Carolina's team won the series on Thursday, defeating Alabama, which took second place. "It's been nothing but accolades," tournament director Lonnie Falgout said on Friday. "The county and the towns - Bay St. Louis and Waveland - put out the welcome mat and everything went off without a hitch." The only disappointment in the whole series, Falgout said, was that the weather didn't cooperate for award ceremonies on Thursday for South Carolina and Alabama's teams.

Local artists to participate in workshops at St. Joseph's

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Abbey Art Works has announced that two Gulf Coast artists will be teaching workshops at Saint Joseph Abbey this fall. Gwen Impson and Lori Gordon will be offering instruction in monotype printmaking and pour painting, respectively.

Artist/printmaker Impson will demonstrate how the monotype process lends itself to endless experimentation as one idea flows into another. Although monotypes are by their very nature single prints, students will learn to create "sequential monotypes" or a series of prints using their own personal imagery.

Instruction will be given for printing monotypes both with and without a press.

Gordon has been an active member of the arts community in the area for several years. She works in many media, and recently had one of her pieces acquired by the Smithsonian Institution. Her workshop is on "pour painting", so called because it focuses on the many ways to create works of art without the use of a brush. Spray bottles and atomizers will be used, as well as objects that create impressions in wet paint.

Impson's three-day workshop is scheduled for September 27-29. The cost is $375 for lodging students, and $225 for day students. Gordon's day and a half workshop will take place on September 30 and October 1, and the cost is $225 for lodging students or $125 for day students.

St. Joseph's Abbey is located near Covington, Louisiana. Guests find that the relaxing atmosphere of the Abbey is especially conducive to personal growth and inspiration. For more information, contact Adrienne Laborde at 985.867.2221 or at alaborde@sjasc.edu. Gwen Impson may be reached at 228.467.1007 and Lori Gordon may be found at 228.466.9253.

Judge 'Soggy' Sweat's famous Whiskey Speech

Views From a Front Porch

by Paul Estronza
La Violette

laviolette@mail.datasync.com
www.annabellepublishing.com

"My friends, I had not intended to discuss this controversial subject at this time..."

This spring, Edward Perry, the long time clerk of the Mississippi House of Representatives retired. At his retirement party, his co-workers started a chant for him to give his rendition of Judge "Soggy" Sweat's famous Whiskey Speech. He gave it and the party went wild.

Their exuberance was justified. Judge "Soggy" Sweat's Whiskey Speech is a tour de force needing a person with a strong rich voice and a well-timed, almost perfect pitch delivery. Perry was that person. In fact, Perry had given it the previous year at the centennial celebration of the Mississippi Capitol building. There were many speeches delivered that day at the hundred-year anniversary of the old building but none were received as rowdily as Perry's oration.

To say that Judge "Soggy" Sweat's famous Whiskey Speech is a good speech is like saying a beautiful woman is pretty. It is a good speech and much more, much much more. While it is a classic speech - in fact a brilliant speech - it is also a superb example of political doublespeak, and above all, richly Mississippian.

In fact Judge "Soggy" Sweat's famous Whiskey Speech is a unique Mississippi treasure, a treasure everyone in the state should be proud of. I firmly believe that somewhere, probably in Corinth, Judge Sweat's hometown, someone should have it chiseled on a large marble monument in the town plaza.

I believe equally as well, that every Mississippian who fancies himself a public speaker should have it memorized and be prepared to deliver it in its entirety at Ovarian cancer is not a possibility anyone likes to think about. But the truth is that one in every 55 women will be diagnosed with the disease, about 23,000 women each year, most in already advanced stages. An estimated 14,000 of those diagnosed this year will die.

That's why producer Cecilia Abadie Howe and Blue Jay Way Productions director Jay Coker have joined with Amy Chaiklin-Murrah, president of the non-profit organization Research for Ovarian Cancer and Continued Survival (ROCCS) to present Margaret Edson's Wit, a play about a literature professor who is dying of ovarian cancer.

Five dollars of each ticket sold will be donated to ROCCS. Accurate Testing Services in Bay St. Louis will also offer discounted screening for the disease with your ticket stub.

Howe became involved in the project when she decided she would like to produce a play to honor her mother Rita Abadie, who passed away in 2003. Abadie loved the theater and instilled that love in her daughter with trips to

LSU Health Science Dermatologists provide free skin cancer screening

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Dermatologists from LSU Health Sciences Center's School of Medicine in New Orleans will conduct a free skin cancer screening on Saturday, August 14, at Lakeside Mall from 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. In addition to screening exposed parts of the body for skin cancer and a precancerous skin growth called actinic keratosis (AK), free educational information will be available.

The American Cancer Society estimates that more than 1 million cases of basal cell or squamous cell carcinoma occur annually, most of which are highly curable. The most serious form of skin cancer, melanoma, is expected to be diagnosed in about 55,100 people this year. In Louisiana, 700 new cases of melanoma are expected to be diagnosed this year. An estimated 10,250 deaths-7,910 from melanoma and 2,340 from other non-epithelial skin cancers will occur this year.

Symptoms may include any change on the skin, such as a new spot or one that changes in size, shape, or color, a sore that doesn't heal, a mole, or other darkly pigmented growth or spot on the skin that changes scaliness, oozing, bleeding, or change in the appearance of a bump or nodule; the spread of pigmentation beyond its border; and a change in sensation, itchiness, tenderness, or pain. AK appears as rough, red, scaly patches, crusts or sores on the top layer of the skin. Left untreated, AK may progress to squamous cell carcinoma.

Because AK takes years to develop, the condition usually first appears in older people, although cases have been reported in people in their 40s and 50s.

Risk factors vary for different types of skin cancer. For melanoma, major risk factors include a prior melanoma, a family history of melanoma, and moles. Other risk factors for all types of skin cancer include sun sensitivity (sunburn easily); difficulty tanning; natural blonde or red hair; a history of excessive sun exposure, including sunburns; tanning booths and exposure to diseases that suppress the immune system, etc.

Recognizing changes in skin growths or the appearance of new growths is the best way to find skin cancer early.

For basal cell or squamous cell skin cancers, a cure is highly likely if detected and treated early. Although melanoma can spread to other parts of the body quickly, when it is detected and treated early, it too, is highly curable. For localized melanoma, the five-year survival rate is 97%.

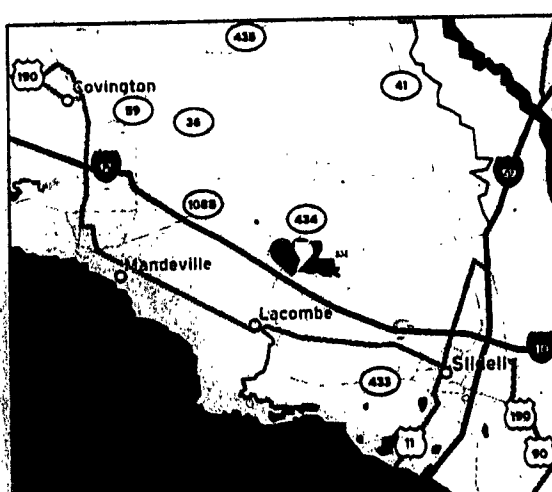

The free screening is made possible by an educational grant from 3M Pharmaceuticals, a division of 3M Health Care, which develops, manufactures and sells prescription drug products related to dermatology and other medical specialties.

Among its schools of medicine, dentistry, nursing, allied health professions, graduate studies, and public health, LSU Health Sciences Center in New Orleans educates about 70% of Louisiana's health care professionals. LSU Health Sciences Center in New Orleans also manages the Charity Hospital System in Louisiana.

Islands National Seashore Environmental Assessment for Ship Island Pier Extension

Gulf Islands National Seashore Superintendent Jerry A. Eubanks announced last week that an Environmental Assessment (EA) for the construction of an extension to the West Ship Island pier is available for public review and comment.

Copies of the EA are available at the William M. Colmer Visitor Center in Ocean Springs and at local libraries, or may be requested by contacting the Mississippi Headquarters Office at 228-875-9057, extension 102. Comments on this document will be received through August 13, 2004.

"We are working with the state of Mississippi and Harrison County to provide additional docking space for recreational boaters at Ship Island," Superintendent Eubanks said.

"This addition to the existing pier will be handicapped accessible and should accommodate 12 to 15 boats. We believe this will be a real benefit to the local community since so many visit the island by private vessel."

MDOT and the Nature Conservancy are recognized for Environmental Partnership

The Charles M. Deaton Ecological Preserve, developed through a partnership between the Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) and The Nature Conservancy, was recognized as an "Exemplary Ecosystem" of national importance by the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) at its National Environmental Staff Conference on June 28.

FHWA has added seven transportation programs to its list of exemplary ecosystem initiatives, bringing the total number to 15. The exemplary ecosystem program is one of FHWA's goals for environmental streamlining and stewardship.

The agency plans to identify at least 30 exemplary ecosystem initiatives in at least 20 states or Federal Land Highway divisions, by September 2007.

In January 2001, MDOT, working with FHWA and the Conservancy, purchased wetland mitigation credits at two sites: Old Fort Bayou in Jackson County and the Deaton Preserve in George and Greene counties. Wetland mitigation banking is the restoration, creation, enhancement and preservation of wetlands on large tracts undertaken as compensation for adverse impacts to wetlands and other aquatic resources from development.

"We are really proud of this recognition," MDOT Commission Chairman Wayne Brown said. "We have enjoyed a great partnership with The Nature Conservancy. Although it is a great honor to receive this award, the environment is the true winner. We're just glad that we could be a part of this endeavor."

The 3,300-acre Deaton tract in George and Greene counties contains sweeping bottomland hardwood and cypress forests. The preserve encompasses approximately 11 miles of frontage along the Leaf and Chickasawhay rivers where they converge to form the Pascagoula River, the largest undammed and unchanneled water drainage system in the lower 48 states. The site is an extension of habitat afforded by the Pascagoula River and Ward Bayou Wildlife Management area, a 47,000-acre public lands corridor that begins just five miles downstream.

The Nature Conservancy of Mississippi is truly proud of its partnership with the Federal Highway Administration and the Mississippi Department of Transportation, said Harry Walker, chairman of the Mississippi Conservancy's Board of Trustees. "This partnership allowed the purchase and perpetual care of property of extreme ecological importance. The Deaton Preserve is now protected for future generations to enjoy and more importantly preserves the ecological integrity of the headwaters of the Pascagoula River. Our accomplishment together shows clearly what visionary people can do for conservation of our most precious natural resources."

Because a Book Never Forgets

Dan Ellis gets excited when he talks about heritage preservation before community service groups. Having written eighteen books about Gulf Coast Louisiana and Mississippi, he knows well the feeling of having contributed to the continuance of Southern legacies. Ellis is always confronted by someone who wishes to author a book, but who never gets around to it. Ellis suggests that even though a person may aspire to write a book, most often that dream never comes true. He offers another way around to what may be a seeming lack of discipline or persistence. Ellis suggests a team effort to put forth a book.

Special interest groups provide an internal stimulation and cohesion to complete the task set before them. It could be a church or a school group that wishes to commemorate its anniversary observances. Everyone welcomes the emotional warmth at family or school reunions as old stories are recalled - having been lost in the maze of years, that passes in one's short lifetime. This nostalgia can be kept refreshed in the form of a memory book complete with photographs. In this way, everyone's nostalgia can be nurtured by simply flipping through the pages of past experiences that can be kept very much alive for themselves and passed on to future generations. There are many undocumented repositories that abound.

In the name of progress, too frequently school and church buildings are torn down and replaced with modern structures that result in the crumbling down of remembrances. If you are a person who habitually stores keepsakes and trivia that others would find inconsequential, then you above all, can appreciate the losses of landmarks, edifices, and even lifestyles.

As a self-publisher for the past dozen years, Dan Ellis has come to know the short cuts and approaches in successfully writing, formatting, printing, binding, distributing, and promoting his books. Realizing that there are so much unrecorded information and sheafs of information that remains stuffed away in drawers - but never revealed for publication - for this reason, Ellis has joined forces with Southern Heritage Publishers as a consultant.

Southern Heritage Press has been in the book publishing business for more than 40 years providing a unique service as a "niche" publisher in that they publish special interest books in reasonable quantities. They specialize in working with historical societies, genealogical societies, military units, church-school-cemetery groups, or even businesses who wish to record and preserve their histories.

For qualifying groups, Southern Heritage Press may even underwrite the cost of the publication and pay a royalty based on the number of copies published and sold.

They specialize in producing hard bound, library quality books and will also do reprints of previously published books as well as offering softbound book services. Ellis provides free instructions to any group interested in producing a book and may be contacted at Dan@PassChristian.Net or Ask@DanEllis.Net. He says that a team-work book is like quilting patchwork that is supplied from a variety of patch sources. It can be as simple as "Cut and Paste."

Week-long summer seminar

During the program, Padron was introduced to academy life through a regimen of academics, physical training, and personal sports, sailing and seamanship, as well as leadership training and social activities.

The summer seminar program was designed by the U.S. Naval Academy's office of admissions to give students a taste of the challenges and benefits of a Naval Academy education.

Padron is currently attending Hancock High School.

Marine Corps Lance

Cpl. Gregory B. Ault, son of Jacqueline F. Ault of Waveland, Miss., and Danniell W. Ault of Decatur, Ga., and more than 2,100 Marines and Sailors assigned to the 11th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU) recently deployed with the Belleau Wood Expeditionary Strike Group to the Western Pacific and Central Command area of responsibility in support of the global war on terrorism.

Ault's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment.

MEU's are built around a reinforced infantry battalion, a combat service support element, a reinforced helicopter squadron and a command element. With its complement of fully integrated air and ground forces, Ault's unit is ready to conduct real-world operations including amphibious, heliborne and boat raids, tactical recovery of aircraft and personnel, noncombatant evacuation operations and humanitarian assistance operations.

Ault is a 2002 graduate of Decatur High School of Decatur, Ga., and joined the Marine Corps in July 2002.

Navy Seaman Christian N. Aucoin, son of Nellie C. Aucoin of Bay St. Louis, Miss., and Brent P. Aucoin of Wiggins, Miss., recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Aucoin completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations." This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of Honor, Courage and Commitment. Its distinctly

"Navy" flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a Sailor.

Aucoin is a 1998 graduate of Riverdale High School of Jefferson, La.

AT2(AW) Dwight Peter Guillot Jr. is inspirational to his shipmates at CNATT Unit Norfolk. His duties to CNATT Unit as an instructor for the E-2C search radar course are unsurpassed.

Filling a position of a first-class petty officer, Guillot is the course curriculum model manager for the E-2C search radar course, where his expertise has allowed him to simultaneously teach two courses for a month which prevented a class from being canceled to meet the fleet requirements.

Guillot assisted the "O" level ATs in troubleshooting the integrated system maintenance

trainer RADAR system down to a faulty airflow microswitch which would have resulted in a delay in training and saved the Navy more than $400 in Public Works Center costs. He aided Aircraft Intermediate Maintenance Department Norfolk on numerous occasions with troubleshooting its degraded Radar Test Bench Set and weapon replaceable assemblies which resulted in a 100 percent up status and full support to repair all aircraft components from the hometown defense squadrons.

Guillot is selflessly involved in his community, dedicating more than 65 hours of coaching little league soccer for the Norfolk Crossing Housing Community Recreational Center. He volunteered more than 40 hours to the Partnership in Excellence Program at Oakwood Elementary as the command's coordinator, as well as donating personal time to troubleshoot the schools degraded video surveillance system. He also volunteered more than 20 hours at Camp Allen Elementary School tutoring students in reading and math skills.

Guillot epitomizes today's Navy professional. He is constantly taking initiative without direction to improve the quality of the instruction at MTU-1026. He is quick to lend a hand to any student or instructor that needs something even if it's not his responsibility. As an active community leader, he brings great credit to the command and the Navy. His personal accomplishments for this year are typical of what he does everyday.

VFW, Ladies Auxiliary 3253 support our troops

At this time there are many brave fellow Americans fighting for our freedom, in several countries throughout the world. It is our responsibility as Americans and volunteer members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Ladies Auxiliary to take care of our soldiers and veterans and their families, especially those hospitalized.

In order to provide support and continue with the numerous and wonderful program provided by the VFW and Ladies Auxiliary, we are soliciting all fellow Americans for their support.

Members are a vital part of this organization and citizens are welcome to join this wonderful and dedicated group. Volunteers are also needed throughout the year to help put on Fund-raiser events. Donations are essential for the raffles and the silent auctions that the Auxiliary participates in with their efforts to raise money for these worthy programs.

One program that the VFW and the Ladies Auxiliary participate in is Operation Uplink, a Program that provides telephone cards that are sent to the soldiers making it possible for them to call home for a short conversation, visit with their families. Another is the Mississippi Burn Center (located in Greenville) and is supported by the VFW Posts and Ladies Auxiliaries throughout the State of Mississippi, providing medical care for burn victims. The VA Hospitals, located in Gulfport and Biloxi, are also recipients of funds raised by local Posts and Auxiliaries. There is also a CancerAid and Research Program, a National Home for Children, and a Food and Gift Program that provides food for the needy and gifts for the less fortunate children during Christmas time.

These are just a few of the programs that the VFW and the Ladies Auxiliary support throughout the year and need your help in continuing. For more information on joining the VFW Post or Ladies Auxiliary 3253 (Bay St. Louis) or making a donation to support the programs, please call Cindy at 469-0579 or Evelyn at 467-4234.

San Fillippo, Allie continue training

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Bay St. Louis Assistant Fire Chief Pam San Fillippo and her golden retriever, Allie, have returned from the Tennessee Search and Rescue Dog Association K-9 Conference held at the Catoosa Military Training Facility in Chattanooga. Allie and San Fillippo are both trained and certified in human remains detection and both work each week-end with Louisiana Search and Rescue teams. While not an official K-9 officer of the city, San Fillippo has made Allie available as needed to assist any investigation in which Allie's skills are needed.

They continue their specialized training at this weeklong conference. Courses included search for human scent on land, under water and in recent or historical burials, and training the handler and canine to assist law enforcement in searches for forensic evidence on any item that may have come in contact with a victim of a crime, as well as detecting trace evidence and skeletal remains.

San Fillippo and Allie field trained in excess of nine hours each day, followed by classroom training on various topics in the evening. They worked on various scenarios involving working on a variety of terrain, including swamps, steep hills, rivers, debris piles, open fields and thick woods.

Scent articles would be buried, underwater, or located under piles of debris, or in some cases, barely covered in a field or woods. "Dog and handler safety was a very serious issue because many field assignments were late at night in unfamiliar terrain with only the light of a flashlight. Treacherous footing on piles of broken concrete or fallen trees posed real hazards, not to mention briars, poison ivy, a few snakes, lots of ticks, and other woods animals," said San Fillippo.

The team dealt with realistic situations such as searching for a person who was lost and injured, where a violent crime had taken place and law enforcement was searching for a victim, as well as working with evidence at a crime scene.

"Working out these scenarios involved real teamwork among classmates as we interviewed witnesses for information, developed and organized search strategy and properly preserved our collected evidence," said San Fillippo.

Night classes included lost person and Alzheimer patient behavior, crime scene preservation and chain of custody, the human decomposition process and K-9 first aid.

Allie has developed a reputation as a dog eager to work and at this conference was more focused and worked better than all expectations. Her work was impressive to everyone, including instructor, Paul Martin, Greenville, Mississippi.

"I always brag on Allie," said San Fillippo, "but really good training includes learning your shortcomings and limitations and from your mistakes. So, while we both have a lot to learn I feel like our training over the last year really came together at this conference."

"I learned more about her body language and became more confident in her abilities when we work under unfamiliar and hazardous conditions."

"In these situations I was dependent on her to lead me, and each time we were successful. In situations where I made the decisions about what I thought she should do, we worked much harder and many times without success. Learning to trust Allie's instincts more was worth its weight in gold."

Human remains detection is considered a gruesome task, but vital in many recovery and crime situations. As Pam says, "Just one time if we located a missing loved one or helped law enforcement to locate vital evidence it would be worth all of this training, practice and sacrifice."

San Fillippo has been a firefighter for more than twenty years and was promoted to assistant chief in 2003. She is the highest-ranking female combat firefighter in Mississippi.

For more information about joining the fire service contact Bay St. Louis Fire Department training officer, Mike Willmitus, 228-467-4736 for the dates of the next recruit class training.

Waveland Civic Association sponsors Teddy Bear drive

The Waveland Civic Association is sponsoring a Teddy Bear drive in an effort to help children in crisis throughout Hancock County.

Members of the Waveland Civic Association are collecting stuffed toys to distribute to all emergency personnel, such as the police departments. In turn, the stuffed toys will be distributed by emergency personnel to all children who are involved in a crisis situation such as a house fire, automobile accident, family disturbance, etc.

"There have been many of these types of situations where children were involved. We feel that the stuffed toys will help to comfort and calm the fears of a scared child in such a situation," said Jay Fountain, president.

Further, Fountain said that he would like to see the stuffed toys in every emergency vehicle throughout Hancock County.

Anyone interested in donating stuffed toys to the Teddy Bear drive can contact Jim Odom at 216-5724 or Jay Fountain at 467-2198 for more information.

the night, a hat, it should be noted at school graduations, church functions and the opening of Super Wal-Mart.

I began hearing abbreviated versions of Judge "Soggy" Sweat's Whiskey Speech when I was in college, and always wondered about the full story behind it.

Back then, Mississippians — while secretly proud of the speech — were not inclined to publicize it too openly. Today, thanks to the magic of the Internet, the story is quite easily found and web sites with the story and the full text of the speech fill an entire Google page.

The speech was originally made by Mississippi Representative N. S. "Soggy" Sweat Jr. on April 4, 1952. Sweat was 28 at the time and reaching the end of his four years as a state representative. He was attending a political banquet that April evening, at a time when prohibition was a controversial issue before the State Legislature.

Here is what Sweat later

said happened:

"The banquet that night (was) at the old King Edward Hotel. The senators, their wives, members of the House and others were guests. Boss Holburn had heard I was working on a universal approach to the whiskey issue. He called me that night and asked me to get up and take a stand on the issue."

Sweat said that as he started his speech, the large crowd sat in attentive silence. "When I finished the first half of the speech, there was a tremendous burst of applause from the dais in the audience. The second half of the speech, the wets all applauded. The dais were as unhappy with the second part of the speech as the wets were with the first half."

Sweat went on to have a rich professional and political career that included stints as a district attorney, circuit court judge and college professor. He died in Corinth of Parkinson's disease in February 1996.

His was a colorful life that many still talk about, but nothing ever came close to that wonderful moment of oratorical glory that he reached on that early spring evening when he spoke of whiskey being "the Devil's brew, the poison scourge and the bloody monster" at the same time as he talked of it being the "oil of conversation" and "the philosophic wine."

Judge "Soggy" Sweat's famous Whiskey Speech
Here in its entirety is the speech that the then-State Representative N. S. "Soggy" Sweat Jr. delivered on April 4, 1952, at a banquet at a time the issue of prohibition was before the State Legislature. Note that it is only five sentences!

"My friends, I had not intended to discuss this controversial subject at this particular time."

"However, I want you to know that I do not shun controversy. On the contrary, I will take a stand on any issue at any time, regardless of how fraught with controversy it might be. You have asked me how I feel about whiskey. All right, here is how I feel about whiskey."

"If when you say whiskey you mean the devil's brew, the poison scourge, the bloody monster, that defiles innocence, dethrones reason, destroys the home, creates misery and poverty, yea, literally takes the bread from the mouths of little children; if you mean the evil drink that topples the Christian man and woman from the pinnacle of righteous, gracious living into the bottomless pit of degradation, and despair, and shame and helplessness, and hopelessness, then certainly I am against it."

"But, if when you say whiskey you mean the oil of conversation, the philosophic wine, the ale that is consumed when good fellows get together, that puts a song in their hearts and laughter on their lips, and the warm glow of contentment in their eyes; if you mean Christmas cheer; if you mean the stimulating drink that puts the spring in the old gentleman's step on a frosty, crispy morning; if you mean the drink which enables a man to magnify his joy, and his happiness, and to forget, if only for a little while, life's great tragedies, and heartaches, and sorrows; if you mean that drink, the sale of which pours into our treasuries untold millions of dollars, which are used to provide tender care for our little crippled children, our blind, our deaf, our dumb, our pitiful aged and infirm; to build highways and hospitals and schools, then certainly I am for it."

"This is my stand, I will not retreat from it. I will not compromise."

Wit -- ovarian cancer

newly formed Blue Jay Ways Productions.

Coker and Howe met at the Little Theater where Coker serves on the Board of Directors. Coker is also active both as an actor and producer at the Little Theater. He teaches theater at Hancock High School.

Caiklin-Murrah was diagnosed with stage three ovarian cancer in January of 1998, at the age of 29. By then she had complained of symptoms for 13 years, she said, and had been denied surgery three years earlier. She was incorrectly diagnosed for a hernia and for endometriosis. By the time her doctor called for a biopsy, the disease was advanced.

Two weeks after her diagnosis she underwent major surgery to remove the cancer. Because of her young age Caiklin-Murrah did not undergo the usual treatment for ovarian cancer, a complete hysterectomy. A round of chemotherapy left her body completely hairless, she said.

Since then she has undergone two more surgeries, the first just 20 days prior to the five-year mark that would have officially marked her as a cancer survivor. Since then she has made the decision to go ahead with the complete hysterectomy. At 35, her diagnosis is not the best because of the repeated recurrences, but, she says, she just takes one day at a time.

Caiklin-Murrah founded ROCCS in her native Connecticut in June of 1999. When she moved to Mississippi she registered the organization here in June of 2001. Its mission is to provide education, spread public awareness, offer support to women diagnosed with the disease, and increase the number of women diagnosed at an early stage.

There is currently no acceptable screening for ovarian cancer. Early detection can increase chances of survival to 90 percent. The most reliable test available now for the disease is a blood test called the CA 125, a test similar to the PSA prostrate screen given to men, which is usually covered as a part of a yearly exam by insurance. Because awareness of the CA 125 test is low, many women don't know to ask for it, and many health insurance policies don't cover it, Caiklin-Murrah said. Because the symptoms can mimic many common ailments, with gas, bloating, frequent urination, leg cramps, migraines and many other common symptoms, the disease remains a silent killer.

Though the CA 125 is the only test available, it is not totally reliable, she said, and can give false negatives as well as false positives. Many changes in a woman's body, ranging from hormonal changes to a viral infection can affect the results of the test, she said. ROCCS supports research to find a more reliable test and will donate $25,000 to the Gynecological Research Foundation in Chicago to further this and other research.

Wit takes the audience through the final stages of professor Vivian Bearings life as she is transformed from a disciplined, in control, member of academia, into a subject of research herself, at a teaching hospital. The multi-dimensional play touches on many of the questions we all face in our struggle through life, and death.

Wit will be performed on August 27, 28 and 29 at the John F. Holmes Playhouse at 301 Boardman Ave. Tickets are $15 and available at the door or by calling 228-586-5574. Because of the sensitive subject matter, the producers recommend that only adults attend the play. For more information on ROCCS check the web at roccsinfo@earthlink.net.

White Cocaine/Black-Tar Heroin

With sweat bursting out in big beads, her eyes wide and almost constantly rolling from side to side, her body in continuous motion and her arms flailing wildly, the young lady pushed past me into the rectory, pleading loudly for money to fill her baby's prescription. Her broad, flashing smile disarmed me relative to everything else that was happening. Still, I was nonplussed as I was proceeding to wind up a funeral planning session with a family. With some misgivings, I left her in the kitchen with a big glass of ice water.

The funeral planning over, I went to the kitchen to fetch the troubled young lady who had not calmed down one bit. The more I watched her and heard her frantic pleas for prescription money, the more I suspected that she was hopped up on something. "I do have insurance from Kaiser Aluminum in Atlanta," she informed me, "but they do not recognize any pharmacy outlets in this part of the country. There's just nothing else to do but pay my baby's prescription directly."

"There has to be a pharmacy outlet in this area recognized by Kaiser," I returned. "It stands to reason that a local Kaiser would have made such business arrangements for their employees. Come on, let's find a local Kaiser listing and put in a call."

As I picked up a telephone book to locate a Kaiser plant, the antsy young lady began to raise a cascade of objections to our calling around to find a pharmacy outlet. At that point, I started having serious doubts about the nobility of her purpose in seeking her baby's medicine. It was looking more and more like she was out to get some cash.

At any rate, I found a telephone listing for a Kaiser Aluminum plant, upriver from New Orleans and gave them a call. They rerouted us to a Kaiser plant in southern California which informed us that they indeed honor all Eckerd's pharmacy stores.

We had the information we needed.

Despite that, the young lady still sounded the horn of negativity, stating that we could not make the proper payment by phone. So I called an Eckerd's pharmacy in the town where the young lady was living.

"Oh, we can't accept a payment through your credit card," a clerk informed me.

"That does not make any sense," I responded. "Let me speak to your manager."

During this exchange, the jumpy young mother redoubled her efforts to deter me from pursuing a credit card payment by phone: "I told you this was not going to work! We will have to make a direct payment in person."

Returning in haste to the phone, the Eckerd's clerk said that she had spoken to the manager and that it would be all right to make a credit card payment by phone after all.

This was indeed the company policy which had been unknown to her.

"Let's put a limit of $50 on the prescription," I told her, judging from the price tag of $45 which the nervous young mother had mentioned to me.

At this point, the distraught young mother saw her visions of cash rapidly disappearing from her grasp. Huge beads of sweat still popping out, her arms flailing amid the wringing of her hands, she paced up and down like a lioness on the prowl. Defeated in her urgent bid for cash, she nonetheless begged $3 for gas and cash for her babysitter.

I was now sure this was the final nail in the coffin. Her frenetic pursuit of cash by any means had definitely tipped her hand about some kind of addiction which had her hooked and was driving her to find money to purchase what her body craved.

By now, all of you have likely surmised why I have recounted this whole story, since each of you has most probably been taken through the wringer a number of times by insensitive, importunate beggars who brazenly maneuver their way toward cash.

Fortunately, whatever the distraught young mother was on was not driving her to any form of theft or violence. That is the danger nowadays as many addicts are hooked on black-tar heroin, the current drug of choice by most hapless members of the drug community. Extremely potent, it drives many junkies to crimes of violence.

Today's black-tar heroin is a far cry from the heroin of yesteryear. When I went to teach at Xavier University in 1969, I encountered my first addict, a 20-year-old man who did maintenance work around the campus. Although he was long gone on heroin, he was the picture of peacefulness, or one might rather say dopiness, stupor.

Of all the heroin addicts I subsequently encountered at that time, not a single one was driven blindly to acquire cash for drugs, especially to the extent of violent confrontation. The reason did not become clear until recent years when black-tar heroin hit the streets.

Compared to this tiger, "King Heroin," "horse," "smack" of 1969 was a pussycat.

The relatively mild proletariat heroin of 35 years ago, a downer, was gradually replaced by the racy, upper-crust society cocaine, an upper, until heroin had virtually disappeared from the scene. Within the last decade, experiment-prone junkies began to use heroin to come down from the high of cocaine.

This time, the heroin was of the black tar variety, soon spawning all kinds of violent crimes.

A great part of our community distress is brought about by the so-called upper crust of society, many of whom always have and continue to do recreational drugs. Even more sadly, some supposedly upstanding folks have come far beyond recreational drugs.

Which puts all of us behind the eight ball when we try to educate our children to shun drugs and to pursue and consume healthful foods and drinks. It also exposes us to a constant parade of innocent-appearing, distraught, jumpy addicts who dun us for cash.

Scripture Says... Believing in God is serious business

By Ed Young

A nobleman's son was dying. The nobleman heard that Jesus was in Galilee; he at once sought Jesus to heal his son. Quote: The nobleman said unto him, Sir, come down my child is dying. Jesus said unto him go your way, your son will live. The man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way. As he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him saying, your son lives. Then he inquired of them the hour he improved. They said unto him; yesterday, at the seventh hour the fever left him.

So the father knew it was at the same hour Jesus said unto him, your son will live. The father believed and his household. John 4: 49, 53.

The question is, the father believed and his household, for how long? Many people who experi-

Grace and Contentment

There is a lot of Christian bashing going on in the media and among intellectuals. Strange. I was taught the pilgrims came to America to escape religious persecution.

Now the Christianity they brought to these shores has fallen into disfavor. At the same time, the editor of US News and World Report ends a weekly editorial with these words: "The nation's hunger for public commitment to social and moral betterment is not simple nostalgia for the simplicities of yesteryear; the clock cannot be turned back. It is a profound and anxious desire to arrest decay. But if the dysfunctional trends continue, that anxiety will turn to fear, and even panic. When fear comes to dominate social policy, reason and tolerance are at risk. That is our predicament."

What brought on the profound social decay which produced so much anxiety and fear? The expulsion of Christianity

Audubon, partners publish state's first birding trail map

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Mississippi birders have something new to crow about — Audubon Mississippi and its partners have just published the state's very first birding trail map, and it is now available to the public. The full-color, 4"x 9" foldable map highlights more than 50 birding hotspots throughout Mississippi's six southernmost counties, and includes sites on the mainland as well as sites accessible only by boat.

The map is available free of charge at the state's 12 Welcome Centers, and upon request from the offices of Mississippi Division of Tourism, Audubon Mississippi, and the Mississippi Coast Audubon Society. A minor shipping fee may be applied for maps supplied upon request.

The Mississippi Coastal Birding Trail map was made possible through the Power of Flight Grant Program, a partnership of Southern Company and the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation. The program provides funding for on-the-ground habitat conservation and education programs that protect birds within the service territories of Southern Company's operating company affiliates, including Mississippi Power, which served as the local administrator of the grant.

"We're pleased to be part of a first-class project that highlights many of the natural treasures found throughout South Mississippi," said Kurt Brautigam, Mississippi Power spokesman. "The Audubon Society members in charge of producing the map have done an exceptional job. Birding complements so many other eco-tourism opportunities available in our area," he continued. "This map should lead to greater exposure for all the natural beauty we've appreciated here for many years."

Many of Mississippi's top birders worked on the map for more than a year, gathering a wealth of information for each site, including directions, habitat types, tips on viewing bird species by season, contact information (where available), and details on additional recreational uses that might appeal to map users, such as picnic areas, camping, and historic sites. The map is sprinkled with striking photos of area birds, and tidbits of general information pertinent to birds and the habitats they occupy.

"At Audubon we work to connect people with nature, whether it's through our nature centers, birding trails, or other projects," said Madge Lindsay, executive director of Audubon Mississippi. "The Mississippi Coastal Birding Trail highlights places that are great for birdwatching and important for the survival of birds. This map will help people make an important connection between healthy landscapes and healthy wildlife, and inspire ways to protect Mississippi's great natural heritage."

The Mississippi Coastal Birding Trail nearly completes the Gulf Coast birding trail loop, which so far includes the Great Texas Coastal Birding Trail, the Alabama Coastal Birding Trail, and the Great Florida Birding Trail.

The Louisiana Great Gulf Coast Birding Trail is in its final stages, and when finished will create a complete Gulf Coast birding trail network.

"The Mississippi Coastal Birding Trail map is integral to the birding experience in Mississippi," said Craig Ray, director of Mississippi Development Authority's Division of Tourism. "Nature tourism is booming throughout the country, and with our indigenous wildlife, natural habitats, and natural resources, Mississippi is situated in a very desirable spot for increased tourism activity in this market. This coastal birding trail map adds yet another rich component to visitors' experiences here."

As statewide interest in the nascent eco-tourism industry continues to grow, Audubon and its partners continue to explore the possibility of establishing a uniform, statewide birding trail network, expanding upon the groundwork and lessons from this initial effort.

Bruce Reid (left), state deputy director for Audubon Mississippi, and Judy Toups, a local birding expert, author and member of the Mississippi Coast Audubon Society, helped unveil the organization's new Mississippi Coastal Birding Trail map at the Gulf Islands National Seashore. Toups oversaw production of the map, which features more than 50 birding hotspots throughout the state's six Coastal counties.

Alden and Emeril Lagasse

Bam on the Beach II with Alden & Emeril

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Join internationally known Chef Emeril Lagasse and his wife Alden for a summer evening celebrating the local flavors of the Gulf South on Saturday, Aug. 28, 6-10 p.m. at the Grand Casino Event Center in Gulfport.

"BAM on the Beach II" is a wine and food experience featuring a cooking demonstration by Chef Emeril, entertainment by Doc Gibbs & Picante, and cuisine from Emeril's Restaurant, NOLA, Emeril's Delmonico and many other coast and regional fine restaurants.

"BAM on the Beach will not only be a one-of-a-kind culinary event with incredible food, wine and great music - it will also be an amazing way to support kids in our community, raising money for the performing arts center," says Emeril Lagasse.

"My wife, Alden and I believe that the more creative and fun things you have for kids to do, the better for the community as a whole. We look forward to making the performing arts center a reality."

General admission tickets are $125 each. Patron tickets that include reserved seats begin at $600 for two people. Corporate sponsor levels beginning at $3,000 include reserved seats to BAM on the Beach II and tickets to an exclusive "Private Party with Emeril" that is scheduled earlier in the evening.

The event is for adults only.

"Only Emeril Lagasse could bring in 1000+ eager guests on a sultry August evening in Mississippi to raise more than $200,000 for BAM on the Beach last year," says Betsy Grant, Director of the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center. "We have limited the number of BAM II tickets to 800 to ensure the comfort of our guests, and with Emeril and Alden as our hosts, I know the evening will be memoorable!"

Alden and Emeril Lagasse launched a $2 million dollar capital campaign in 2003 to create a performing arts center at the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center, Mississippi's first Children's Museum, in Gulfport. Alden Lagasse, a Gulfport native, was a friend and tennis partner of Lynn Meadows for whom the museum was named.

Proceeds from BAM on the Beach II benefit The WINGS Performing Arts Program and will be used to renovate the gymnasium adjacent to the museum to create a theatre and education center exclusively for young people, the first of its kind in Mississippi.

Tickets can be purchased by calling the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center at 228-897-6039, or online at www.lmdc.org.

For more information, please contact Mary Ann Caldwell at the Lynn Meadow Discovery Center at 228-897-6039 EXT. 16.

Celebrity Scoop

Courtney Hansen

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Leggy, blond Courtney Hansen may have done her stint in modeling, but catching up with her on the set of TLC's "Overhaulin'" the runway seems to have been replaced by the speedway - or at least the pit.

Baseball cap perched on her head and grimy from fingertips to elbows, Hansen isn't just a presenter on the show, she's one of the boys - or dudes, as she likes to put it.

"They're like, 'We have four guys working on the brakes, and one girl,'" she says, "and I said, 'No, five dudes!'"

On "Overhaulin'," which airs Tuesdays, carefully chosen "victims" (the favored on-set term) have their cars removed from them by nefarious means, which involve hidden cameras and elaborate deceptions by Hansen and co-host Chris Jacobs. Then, one week later, the car is returned, transformed by famed auto designer and builder Chip Foose.

Hansen gets to show off her acting ability in the various pranks played on the unwitting car owners. She then gets to show off her mechanical ability in the garage as she pitches in with the build (hence the grime).

"I definitely think it's sexy when women break out in a traditionally male-dominated world," she says, taking a break outside a garage during the last day of a build, "but some guys find it threatening. Maybe some still have chauvinistic ideas, and maybe that's why it's difficult for them to trust a woman welder or a woman engine tuner."

"Maybe men just think of it as their world, and suddenly, we're breaking into it. I wonder if these guys like the fact that I hang out with them?"

Birthplace: Orono, Minn.

Current digs: A small, but well-situated apartment just blocks from the beach in Marina del Rey.

Favorite wheels: 1965 Mustang convertible.

Current wheels: Brand-spanking new black 2004 Ford Thunderbird convertible (customized by Chip Foose, of course), purchased with the help of her father.

Favorite TV wheels: The General Lee from "The Dukes of Hazzard" (otherwise known as a bright orange 1968 Dodge Charger).

Not just a pretty face: Hansen has a degree in marketing from Florida State University.

TV history: Host of Travel Channel's "Killer Golf."

'Great Performances' unearths vintage Tony Awards highlights

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Some of theater's brightest stars are captured in electrifying highlights from their signature roles in "Broadway's Lost Treasures II," a "Great Performances" special airing on most PBS stations Monday, Aug. 9 (check local listings).

Produced by Christopher A. Cohen, whose father, showman Alexander H. Cohen, oversaw the 1967-86 Tony Awards telecasts, this new special - the second in a series - dusts off near-definitive performances that have not been seen since their original Tony telecasts.

There isn't a real clunker in the lineup, and one number in particular fairly explodes off the screen: "We'll Take a Glass" from "Grand Hotel," featuring the late Michael Jeter at the height of his dance powers, hurling himself around the stage like a drunken, gravity-defying rag doll. Jeter won a Tony and became an instant star with this performance, and it's easy to see why.

Gregory Hines - another great dancer, now sadly deceased - is gloriously recalled via a lively medley from his own Tony-winning triumph, "Jelly's Last Jam," while Angela Lansbury and Beatrice Arthur reprise their own Tony-winning double act in the catty comic duet "Bosom Buddies" from "Mame."

Also of note: four Tony-winning male stars performing their show-stopping tunes from original Broadway productions of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" (Robert Morse, with "I Believe in You"), "Man of La Mancha" (Richard Kiley performing "The Impossible Dream"), "La Cage aux Folles" (George Hearn, with his roof-raising "I Am What I Am") and "Chicago" (Jerry Orbach crooning "All I Care About Is Love").

Lauren Bacall, Brian Stokes Mitchell, Bebe Neuwirth and Orbach are on hand with brief hosting intros, but their appearances really only serve as resting points in a program that also includes "You'll Never Walk Alone," "Anything Goes," "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat" and medleys from "Ain't Misbehavin'" and "Les Miserables."

Cover Story

Costas says skip the pomp and let the Games begin

By George Dickie
C Zap2it

The Opening Ceremony of any Olympic Games is about pageantry, national pride and the anticipation of athletic excellence.

They are not, however, about athletic competition itself, at least not in the eyes of NBC's Bob Costas. "I think my quote in the past was that it's part United Nations gathering and part Thanksgiving Day parade, so why don't they just have Kofi Annan and Mary Hart do it?" says Costas, who will assume hosting chores alongside Katie Couric when NBC and its cable affiliates begin broadcasting the XXVIII Summer Games from Athens, Greece, on Friday, Aug. 13. "Because the ceremony lasts so long and it has so many different elements, and then when you get to the Parade of Nations, there are more than 200 nations this year. It becomes a game of idiot ping-pong. All right Katie, I'll take Paraguay and you take Peru. And no matter how pertinent or even amusing some of these items are, it's just item, item, item, and it's a no-win situation."

"I've always felt that it's kind of ironic that perhaps the most-watched thing, at least in most Olympics, is the Opening Ceremony, and it's where a first impression is created. But the real hosting of the Olympics begins Day Two, when the competition begins. I think of my real job and what I really do as happening when I get behind a desk. But I'm going to keep doing this Opening Ceremony until I get it right - until WE get it right."

These Games are noteworthy on several fronts, for reasons not the least of which is location. Originally created in Athens in 776 B.C. as a religious festival celebrating the Greek god Zeus (and then banned in 393 A.D.), the Games were reborn in that city as the modern Games in 1896. They return there this year for the first time since, and Costas, an inveterate history buff of Greek ancestry, is intrigued. "I think it has a lot of meaning," he offers. "I like history, period, whether it's sports or any other aspect, and I especially like Olympic history. And there would be no greater place that would be as fertile for that as Greece, that has as rich a history. Plus, you've just got all the history of the nation itself, the mythology, the Acropolis, the Parthenon, the old Olympic Stadium. So you've got all that, and then my father's side of the family is entirely Greek, so I feel a personal connection."

As is frequently the case in the Olympics, world politics will have a presence at these Games. The war in Iraq has made the United States less than popular in some corners of the world, and Costas expects that will manifest itself in the reception for U.S. athletes during the Opening Ceremony. "My guess is that it will be mostly respectful, and a smattering of negative response," he says. "Now on the other hand, I think if you had a repeat of the Americans doing what the relay team guys did in Sydney (in 2000), I think that there would be a very harsh reaction for that. You know what I'm talking about: that kind of preening stuff that they did, the kind of strutting around stuff. I think people in general - leave the world situation aside - I think reasonable people have very short patience for that kind of stuff anyway. Then you throw in the kind of 'Ugly American' perception, I think we can all do without that."

Another potential dark side to the Games is a developing doping scandal that has rocked the U.S. track and field team and has four accused athletes facing lifetime bans. "Anyone who has followed sports over the last many years realizes that there has been a significant amount of performance-enhancing drug use," Costas says. "It isn't confined to any one sport, but track and field is a place where you'll definitely find it. ... And I've been saying this about baseball for the better part of a decade and the rest of the world kind of caught up in the last two years."

Bob Costas likens his role as host of the XXVIII Summer Olympics, beginning Friday on NBC, to that of a shortstop. "Whatever comes my way, I try to field it," he says.

"This, to me, was like emperor's new clothes stuff. It was so obvious that something was different, radically different, and we're to believe that it's just a coincidence, OK? Now I hear people saying, 'Well, you know, even if guys took steroids, steroids doesn't help you hit a baseball any better.' Well then, let me ask you something: What would be the reason for taking them? To pose for a beach calendar? ... Wouldn't it be a colossal coincidence that the massive uptick in batting totals coincides with the steroid era?"

"To think that performance-enhancing drugs isn't among the factors is to, like, check your brain at the door," Costas continues. "As it relates to the Olympics, clearly it's an issue. Now, the BALCO thing has put it front and center, just because it involves, at least potentially, so many well-known American athletes."

Q What has happened to Helen Hunt? I haven't seen her for a while. - Jean K., Colorado Springs, Colo.

A After her brief marriage to longtime beau Hank Azaria imploded in 2000, Hunt moved to New York and immersed herself in theater, as well as the minor Woody Allen comedy "The Curse of the Jade Scorpion" (2001).

Now, at 41, Hunt is moving back into the spotlight through some major life changes and high-profile professional projects. She and boyfriend Matthew Carnahan, a producer, welcomed their first child on May 14. She recently completed filming "A Good Woman," adapted from Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan," in which she co-stars with Scarlett Johansson and Tom Wilkinson.

Even bigger is "Empire Falls," an all-star adaptation of Richard Russo's novel, in which Hunt appears with Ed Harris, Philip Seymour Hoff-

Q I heard that Peter Boyle ("Everybody Loves Raymond") was very close to John Lennon. How did they become friends? - Georgene R., Willoughby, Ohio.

A Through Rolling Stone reporter Loraine Alterman, Boyle's girlfriend, who was also a close pal of Yoko Ono. The two men hit it off so well that Lennon was best man at Boyle and Alterman's 1977 wedding.

Q I recently saw a repeat episode of "Without a Trace" entitled "The Bus" that had a very touching song played throughout. What was it? - E.M., Columbus, Ohio.

A That was Gary Jules covering "Mad World," an old Tears for Fears song from that group's album "The Hurting." Jules' version is available on his compact disc called "Trading Snake Oil for Wolf tickets."

Teen faves emerge again on a 'Choice' Fox award show

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Whether you're an overnight-sensation singer or an action show staple, you have a place in the Teen Choice Awards.

This year's nominees again bear out the variety built into the event, which Fox will air Wednesday, Aug. 11 (three nights after the show is taped at the Universal Amphitheatre in Hollywood). Television, movies, music and sports are all represented in various categories - some of which extend to the offbeat, such as Choice Hissy Fit, Choice Liplock and Choice Sleazebag in motion pictures.

Familiar faces will abound on stage and in the audience. Among those slated to be on hand are Lindsay Lohan, Jennifer Garner, "Simple Life" travel partners Paris Hilton and Nicole Richie, Ashton Kutcher, Mischa Barton ("The O.C."), latest "American Idol" runner-up Diana DeGarmo, "Smallville" stars Tom Welling and Kristin Kreuk, Ashlee Simpson, Gregory Smith ("Everwood"), skateboarder Tony Hawk, model Tyra Banks, Anne Hathaway ("The Princess Diaries"), Chad Michael Murray ("One Tree Hill," "A Cinderella Story") and surfer Bethany Hamilton.

While Fox's "American Idol" is up for Choice Reality/Variety TV Show, and Ryan Seacrest and Simon Cowell are rivals for Choice TV Personality, DeGarmo isn't an individual nominee ... but give it a year, since her single "Dreams" recently premiered on Billboard magazine's Hot 100 chart as the third-highest debut of 2004 so far. The 17-year-old vocal powerhouse from Snellville, Ga., says she's "excited about attending the Teen Choice Awards. I've always watched it on TV, so actually going to it is really cool for me."

DeGarmo also enjoys being a symbol of what teens can accomplish. "It's great to think that somebody my age can do this when so many people have doubts," she says. "I just want to show people that age is only a number. It's more about experience and actually going after what you want, instead of just deciding, 'I'm too young. I can't do this.' Christina Aguilera was signed to a record deal when she was 14, I think, and LeAnn Rimes was signed to one when she was 13. I want to prove that whether you're 16 or 61, you can have a hit."

Now on a national tour with the other nine top finalists (including winner Fantasia Barrino) from the past season of "American Idol," DeGarmo also is recording her first album, for which she anticipates a fall release, and she's getting a kick out of her friends' reactions to all that has happened to her since this year began. "A friend of mine told me that someone saw her recently and said, 'That's Diana DeGarmo's friend!' She didn't know what to do, so she just kind of ran away. My friends have been really supportive, though. I've always told them, 'If I get a big head, just put me in my place.' Luckily, they haven't had to do that yet."

On the TV drama front, Kreuk is pleased to be a first-time Teen Choice nominee for her portrayal of Lana Lang on The WB Network's "Smallville." Having attended the ceremony once before, she muses the experience was "kind of scary," since the celebrities are seated among highly enthusiastic fans. Still, Kreuk takes her nomination as acknowledgement of Lana coming into her own much more, what with her operating Smallville's Talon theater-turned-coffee-house and spending time in Paris lately.

"When you're young and you've basically lived your whole life in one place, you can't go away for a summer like that and not come back changed," Kreuk says, adding that she herself has changed in addressing concerns to the show's writers and producers. "I'm still not completely comfortable doing it, but Lana has progressed so much, she's just a joy to play."

Kreuk, who has spent part of her summer working with Isabella Rossellini on the upcoming Sci-Fi Channel miniseries "Earthsea," reports other alterations to "Smallville" for its fourth season. They include the arrival of Lana's ultimate rival for Clark Kent (Welling): Lois Lane, to be played by relative newcomer and fellow Canadian Erica Durand. However, Lana won't necessarily be sitting around waiting for Clark to make his choice. She'll have a new love interest, too, portrayed by Jensen Ackles ("Days of Our Lives," "Dark Angel").

"I think actors are just like fans when a season ends," Kreuk reasons. "We don't know what the heck's going on, so we're just as anxious to come back and find out what happens to the characters."

Kreuk got in some R&R after finishing her series work last season, visiting Paris with "Smallville" co-star Allison Mack ("research," she calls it with a laugh) and also traveling to Cuba and New York. Whatever the result of her Teen Choice Award nomination, Kreuk is ready to get back to the job that earned it for her. "It's kind of hard to make everything that happens in Smallville seem real, but it's been a great experience for me."

Kristin Kreuk, a first-time nominee for her role on The WB Network's "Smallville," will be in attendance when Fox broadcasts the 2004 Teen Choice Awards on Wednesday.

In the Spotlight

ABC News cameras take audiences behind closed doors

By John Crook
© Zap2it

For the first time, ABC looks at jury deliberations in an Ohio death-penalty case, as well as five other homicide trials, in "In the Jury Room," a groundbreaking limited series premiering Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 10-11, on ABC.

ABC News Senior Legal Correspondent Cynthia McFadden narrates the series, which opens with an unprecedented look at how a jury on a capital case goes about reaching such a high-stakes conclusion. The reality may surprise viewers whose impressions of the system have been formed mainly by scripted legal dramas such as "Ally McBeal" and "The Practice," series producer Michael Bicks says.

"Juries are a metaphor for democracy, because you take a group of diverse opinions and out of them comes a collective wisdom," he says. "It's an amazing thing to watch, and I hope viewers will get a new appreciation for how the system works."

In the first case, thanks to a special order from the Ohio Supreme Court, ABC News was allowed to spend three months covering the State of Ohio v. Mark Dacic, who was charged with double homicide. The two-part premiere documents virtually every major step of the legal process from pretrial preparations through the trial and jury deliberations to the final verdict, which came as a surprise to many.

Bicks says ABC News got its access during these capital cases as a direct result of the success of "State v.," a 2002 limited series that offered similar access to a series of non-capital trials in Arizona, following a special order from the Arizona Supreme Court.

"The Arizona Supreme Court was extremely happy with 'State v.' and how educational it was," Bicks says. "Other courts, most notably in Ohio and Colorado, agreed to participate after they saw how we worked, that we wouldn't affect the outcome."

The ABC News team takes extraordinary steps to ensure that their presence doesn't get in the way of due process. During each trial, two camera teams are used, each working exclusively with only the prosecution or the defense, to ensure that no confidential information makes its way from one side to the other.

Once a case reaches the jury, Bicks and his team use small, unobtrusive cameras inside the jury room to record the proceedings.

"The cameras in the jury room are very small globes that you can't see the lens in," Bicks says. "The jurors have consented to having them there, but they're very unobtrusive and there is no cameraman in the room."

The six trials in "In the Jury Room" were culled from about 100 cases in Arizona, Ohio and Colorado.

"Everyone has to consent: the prosecutors, the defense lawyers, the judge, the victim's family," Bicks explains. "We wound up with maybe 12 where everyone gave consent, and out of that we picked the ones where there was an element of doubt (that) the jury had to decide."

And almost without exception, juries take that responsibility very seriously.

"When people ask me, 'Do you think your cameras affect jurors?' it's almost an insult," Bicks says. "I've watched 11 juries, and these people take their cases extremely seriously and they deliberate with real gravity. I think people will discover the death-penalty issue is more complicated than they ever even imagined, regardless of which side you are on."

Straits Course shows PGA-ers it's ready to be 'major' player

By Mark Passaro

Golf and its famous traditions are like a mother and her newborn. One rarely goes anywhere without the other.

So it was a bit surprising when the 86th PGA Championship, airing on TNT and CBS Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 12-15, was awarded to a course whose history dates back to just 1998, and one that has never hosted a tour event of any kind. But what attracted the PGA of America to Whistling Straits in Kohler, Wis., was its old-style Irish links setup, complete with massive sand dunes, natural fescue fairways and deep pot bunkers.

"It's a spectacular looking golf course," says Billy Kratzert, who will be walking the spacious 7,514-yard course as a reporter for TNT, "but I can tell you it is one hard golf course. ... In my opinion, I think it is tougher than (Royal) Troon (in Scotland) or Shinnecock (Hills, on Long Island). It's tougher than both of those golf courses. And if the wind blows and the greens get really hard, over par will win it easy."

Those winds may blow off of Lake Michigan, which frames the entire east side - two miles worth - of the Pete-Dye-designed Straits Course. Kratzert, who plays in select Champions Tour events, believes it may be the world-renowned architect's best work yet, highlighted by its two closing holes.

"A lot of people talk about Cypress Point (in California) and the 16th hole, a par 3, you know, with the Pacific Ocean and everything," he says. "I'm not making any comparisons, but 230 yards, I mean, it's just a hard golf hole, and 18 is just a hard golf hole. You have to hit three quality golf shots in order to hit the green in regulation - 17, obviously the tee shot, then 18, you have to drive it in the fairway and then you have to hit a good second shot."

Defending champion Shaun Micheel got a feel for Whistling Straits' varying elements during a practice round in June. He called the course challenging, but not unfair, a word many pros used to describe the conditions at Shinnecock in this year's U.S. Open. Kratzert, for one, doesn't foresee that happening again. "They're just not going to let it get to the point where it gets away from them, that's what I think. With the severity of Whistling Straits, I mean, they can't afford to."

He does expect former-major winners Jim Furyk, Ernie Els and Vijay Singh to be in contention - as well as some guy named Phil Mickelson. "Think of it this way," Kratzert reasons. "After winning Augusta and what he's done up to this point this year, if he was to never hit a golf shot the rest of this year, this year has been the biggest success of his career. So, in my opinion, he's playing with the bank's money right now. He can afford to go ahead and hit the shots that he's worked on, and not only is he hitting them, but he's executing them, and then the more he executes those shots, the more dangerous he becomes in winning more and more majors."

"And his putting, sure they can look back at the 71st hole (at the U.S. Open) and point that out. But you know what? He's putted pretty well throughout this year, and he's kinda toned it down from that 3- and 4-foot range to where he's not hitting it so hard."

As for Tiger Woods, who's still ranked as the world's top player despite being winless in his last nine majors, Kratzert cautions the growing chorus of commentators and journalists questioning his game. "Tell you what, I'd be leery of shooting too many holes in Tiger ... because they used to do that to Jack (Nicklaus) all the time. You know, 'Ah, he's done, he's in hibernation, the Bear's not coming out.' Well, you know what? It was just enough fuel that he came back and, boom! So, you better be careful about shooting too many holes in Tiger. You know, they didn't give those eight majors to him, so I think he certainly has a few more in there, and this is just a little rough patch that he's going through, and all will be forgotten when he wins the next major."

"So I think it's gonna be a great test of golf, I really do," he continues. "You're going to see some of the names pop up that aren't, you know, superstars, but you see that in every major. But I think when it comes down to the final day and when that sun starts setting and everyone starts watching the 70th, 71st and 72nd hole, there's gonna be two superstars and two superstar names that are gonna be walking down that fairway vying for that PGA Championship."

Shaun Micheel

"NASCAR Racing" Sunday, Aug. 8 (NBC, 2:30 p.m. ET): If you dream of becoming a big-time auto racer, chances are those dreams include a victory lap at Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Kevin Harvick's childhood fantasy came true in last year's Brickyard 400 when he outlasted the field to win the 10th running of this event. Harvick, who was the only driver in the standings' top 10 besides Bobby Labonte without a win after 18 races, defends his title today. Jeff Gordon is a three-time Brickyard winner.

"MLB Baseball" Sunday, Aug. 8 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): The Chicago Cubs' wild card prospects may hinge on the outcome of their current 12-game swing through the NL West, including tonight's game in San Francisco against Barry Bonds and the Giants. Bonds is still going strong at the age of 40. When the opposition isn't walking him, he's hitting home runs, and he should reach the magic 700 mark for his career this season. That would put him roughly 130 ahead of another slugger, the Cubs' Sammy Sosa.

"XXVIII Summer Olympics" Friday, Aug. 13 (NBC, 8 p.m. ET): The modern Olympics, which began in Athens in 1896, come full circle when the Summer Games officially return to the ancient city. Chances are, whatever your favorite sport may be, you'll be able catch it during the NBC Universal networks' (which includes MSNBC, CNBC, USA Network and Bravo) blanket coverage, nearly three times more than four years ago in Sydney, Australia.

7 p.m. on 38-WB
Charmed

Thought by Phoebe and Paige (Alyssa Milano, Rose McGowan) to be dead, Piper and Leo (Holly Marie Combs, Brian Krause) have been sent into a ghost world by a Darklighter (guest star Eduardo Ballerini) in "The Courtship of Wyatt's Father." The moment of truth arrives for Chris (Drew Fuller), who may disappear forever unless two other people are brought together intimately.

7 p.m. on ESPN
MLB Baseball

The Chicago Cubs' wild card prospects may hinge on the outcome of their current 12-game swing through the NL West, including tonight's game in San Francisco against Barry Bonds and the Giants. Bonds is still going strong at the age of 40. When the opposition isn't walking him, he's hitting home runs, and he should reach the magic 700 mark for his career this season. That would put him roughly 130 ahead of another slugger, the Cubs' Sammy Sosa.

8 p.m. and DSC
Monster Games

Mechanically enhanced performances aren't allowed at the Olympics, but no one plays by the rules in this new special. The "Monster Garage" gang have melded minds to come up with creations designed to increase humans' natural abilities. The results are given a test run through competition.

Movie: The Hollywood Mom's Mystery

An amateur detective (Justine Bateman) sets out to solve a neighbor's murder in this new comedy-mystery movie. The victim (Angie Everhart) is the wife of a TV-comedy star (George Hamilton, who briefly was Everhart's father-in-law in real life). Bateman's character has a personal reason for wanting the culprit found: Her own husband (Andrew McCarthy) is the prime suspect.

8 p.m. on USA
The 4400

The new science-fiction miniseries concludes as Tom (Joel Gretsch, "Taken") tries to free his apprehended son, Kyle (Chad Faust), and finally get to the bottom of the mystery involving the thousands of suddenly returned people. Richard (Mahershala Ali) clashes with Collier (Billy Campbell) over Lily (Laura Allen). Peter Coyote and Jacqueline McKenzie also star.

All My Children

After speaking with Maria, Bobby told Greenlee that he really isn't interested in her. When Kendall found out, she threatened blackmail, then made sure that Ryan lost a bidding war for a major corporation, which Adam and J.R. won. Liza realized that J.R. drugged Babe but had to keep silent when Adam and J.R. threatened to take Colby away from her. Someone drugged David's liquor. He suspected J.R., but it turned out to be one of Zach's subordinates. Tad and Jamie convinced Derek to allow Jamie to be arrested and locked up near Seth in hopes of getting a confession out of Seth. Reggie then admitted to Derek that Seth sold drugs to Reggie's mother. Coming: Erica wants to reconnect with her daughters.

As the World Turns

Wade kidnapped Lucy after Craig said he had no more money for him. Dusty saved Lucy, who had been buried alive, and gave her an intense kiss before bringing her home. When Craig stated that Alan Drake was behind Lucy's kidnapping, Dusty exploded and branded Craig a liar. Carly found Parker, who was close to death. As Carly later said goodbye to the presumably dead Jack, he was shown to be alive, as someone wearing a nurse's uniform looked after him. Paul refused to let Rosanna consummate her marriage, knowing she loves him. Casey lashed out at Margo for having an affair. Aaron saw Chris and Emily kiss. Coming: Craig attempts to cover up his scheme.

Bold and Beautiful

Ridge and Thorne had a heated argument after the security guard refused to allow Daria to enter the Forrester building. They then told Eric he must fire one of them because they can't work together anymore. Amber broke off her make-out session with Thomas, realizing it was wrong, but Oscar saw them share one last embrace. Ridge later saw Thomas in the car kissing an unknown woman. Nick spotted pills falling out of Felicia's bag and, concerned for her, told Stephanie, who grilled Felicia about a drug problem. An angry Felicia then left a message for Nick. Coming: Stephanie and Eric announce their decision.

Days of Our Lives

After fainting upon learning of Lucas's proposal to Sami, Kate was forced to congratulate Sami, who had agreed to marry Lucas. Hearing Lexie admit that she needs someone to help her, Tek said that he will be there for her and gave her a passionate kiss. Marlena encountered Cassie and wondered if she's a spy for their captors, but Roman defended her. Later, Roman removed a poisonous snake from Marlena's living room. ### 'B&B' gets a bold new look

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

In July, "The Bold and the Beautiful" introduced the first new redesign of its opening credits and logo since the series premiered in 1987. Along with the new look, "B&B" created an updated Web site, <http://www.BoldandBeautiful.com>, for fans to get the latest info on the series and chat with like-minded fans.

BoldandBeautiful.com will be exclusively in English, but soon after will be available in Spanish and Italian.

In casting news: Over at "The Young and the Restless," Michael Nouri ("Flashdance") joins the cast in the role of Elliot Hampton, CEO of Chancellor Industries. Former "Days of Our Lives" star Mark Valley (ex-Jack Deveraux), who starred in the Fox series "Keen Eddie," has landed a new prime-time gig. He joins James Spader in the spinoff of "The Practice" called "Boston Legal," on ABC this fall.

Prime-time soap fans will be able to revisit the glory days of "Melrose Place" and "Beverly Hills, 90210" when SOAPnet begins airing the two Aaron Spelling series. "Melrose Place" premieres Sept. 13; "90210" is slated for early 2005.

Dear Paulette: Please tell me what ever happened to Sarah Brown, who played Sonny's wife (Carly Corinthos) on "General Hospital"? After leaving the soap opera, she starred for a short time on "Mysterious Ways" then disappeared. What's up with her now? - Tina B. in Chicago

Dear Reader: In February of this year, Brown starred in USA Network's ripped-from-the-headlines movie "The Perfect Husband: The Laci Peterson Story" as Kate Vignatti. Word is that next up for the actress is a role in the feature film "Heart of the Beholder."

Dear Paulette: I see so much of a resemblance between Rebecca Budig of "All My Children" and Cynthia Gibb of movies that I wonder if they are related? - Irene K.

Dear Reader: In my research, I couldn't find any connection between the two actresses. But I did hear that Budig, who had previously announced her engagement to "Bachelor" Bob Guiney, got married over the Fourth of July weekend in a secret ceremony in Long Lake, Mich.

Lori Loughlin

Hollywood has turned out countless dramas about jurors, from "12 Angry Men" right up to the summer show "The Jury," but this unscripted series is the real deal. Cameras go into the deliberation room with the dozen citizens charged with determining a trial verdict. As this premiere episode indicates, fierce debates among jury members aren't just the stuff of fiction. Longtime "20/20" correspondent Cynthia McFadden narrates.

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

The rape and murder of a rich, elderly woman in her own apartment puts Stabler and Benson (Christopher Meloni, Mariska Hargitay) on the trail of the suitors she saw most recently in "Bound." The police detectives become aware of two previous homicides, then try to determine whether a serial killer is the perpetrator.

Wednesday Best Bets

4:15 p.m. and AMC
Movie: The Man Who Shot Liberty
Valance

Sen. Ransom Stoddard (James Stewart), an ex-attorney from the East, returns with his wife (Vera Miles) to the once-lawless city of

Lindsay Lohan

Shinbone, where he was forced into a showdown with the bullying Liberty Valance (Lee Marvin). Stoddard recalls the pivotal role Tom Doniphon (John Wayne) played in helping him stand up to vicious Valance. Directed by John Ford, this classic 1962 Western also stars Edmond O'Brien and Andy Devine.

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The 2004 Teen Choice Awards.

The winners have yet to be announced, but Lindsay Lohan, Jessica Simpson and the series "The O.C." clearly have places in the hearts of many teens. They're among the top nominees in this event, taped the previous weekend, at the Universal Amphitheatre in Hollywood. It celebrates young people's favorites in television, movies, music and sports. Some of the categories are way off the beaten path; Paris Hilton and Nicole Richie host.

7 p.m. and TNT

Movie: Star Trek: Insurrection

A race of aliens, with Federation support, wants to uproot the forever-young inhabitants of an idyllic planet and claim it for the billions who need its fountain-of-youth radiation. But Capt. Picard (Patrick Stewart) sees a violation of the Prime Directive — don't mess with other civilizations — in the plan and openly defies the powers that be. F. Murray Abraham, Marina Sirtis and Brent Spiner also star in the ninth big-screen "Trek" outing.

7:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

My Wife and Kids

When Michael (Damon Wayans) is summoned to serve on a jury, he's more than a little surprised to find Jay (Tisha Campbell-Martin) among the other 11 jurors in "Jury Duty." Given the rarity it is for spouses to be impaneled together, he becomes convinced he's been subjected to jury tampering — especially after he meets a supposed mobster (guest star Steven R. Schirripa, "The Sopranos").

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

The Drew Carey Show

With Kellie (Cynthia Watros) pregnant, Drew (Drew Carey) tries to show solidarity by giving up drinking along with her in the "No Booze for Drew." He soon regrets having made the promise, particularly with Lewis and Oswald (Ryan Stiles, Diedrich Bader) urging him to break it. Mimi (Kathy Kinney) tries to keep a handsome delivery man (guest star Reichen Lehmkuhl, "The Amazing Race") literally in her corner.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

Another of Clark's (Tom Welling) superpowers becomes evident to him in "Whisper." Left temporarily sightless after using his heat vision to stop a robbery, he discovers how far his hearing extends. It's a curse as much as a blessing, since he eavesdrops on conversations he ends up wishing he had.

n't picked up on. One of them transpires between Chloe (Allison Mack) and Lionel Luthor (John Glover).

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

The strangling death of a peace activist follows his clashes with police officers and a military veteran in "Veteran's Day." In the course of investigating, Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) uncover a previous dispute between the victim and the ex-soldier, who evidently considered the activist's views anti-American.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

The murder of a widely despised New York Yankees fan sends Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) on a hunt for a possibly homicidal baseball devotee in "Vendetta." Their likeliest suspect turns out to be an ex-con who was jailed for a killing he didn't commit, prompting the police detectives to revise their hunches.

Movie: Barbarosa

Willie Nelson stars as an older outlaw in this 1982 Western. While on the run from Mexicans, Barbarosa (Nelson) is joined by Karl (Gary Busey), a young farmer of German ancestry. Karl has been accused of murder, and is being chased by family members with definite ideas of justice. Isela Vega, Sharon Compton and Danny De La Paz co-star.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

XXVIII Summer Olympics

The modern Olympics, which began in Athens in 1896, come full circle when the Summer Games officially return to the ancient city. Chances are, whatever your favorite sport may be, you'll be able to catch it during the NBC Universal networks' (which includes MSNBC, CNBC, USA Network and Bravo) blanket coverage, nearly three times more than four years ago in Sydney, Australia. Bob Costas hosts tonight's Opening Ceremonies from the 75,000-seat Olympic Stadium.

7:30 p.m. on 26-ABC

8 Simple Rules

The emotionally confused Bridget and Kerry (Kaley Cuoco, Amy Davidson) take a road trip after seeing their mother (Katey Sagal) in the arms of their late father's newspaper successor (guest star Artie Anderson) in the conclusion of the two-part episode "Let's Keep Going." Rachel (guest star Nicole Mansour) makes an admission to Rory (Martin Spanjers). Singer-actor Mac Davis ("North Dallas Forty") also guest stars.

7:30 p.m. on 38-WB
Grounded for Life

Claudia (Megyn Price) plagiarizes Lily's (Lynsey Bartilson) paper in "The Cheat Is On." Unfortunately, she discovers Lily copied from another document. Jimmy (Griffin Frazen) learns some dubious romantic moves from Eddie (Kevin Fitzgerald Corrigan).

8 p.m. on 26-ABC

Hope & Faith

Faith (Kelly Ripa) runs into the spouse (guest star Tom Arnold) she never divorced in "Faith's Husband." The encounter is hostile at first, but things warm back up between them considerably — prompting Faith to move into her mate's mobile home, which he has parked in Hope and Charley's (Faith Ford, Ted McGinley) driveway.

8:30 p.m. on 26-ABC

Less Than Perfect

Kipp (Zachary Levi) has an unexpected reunion with his mother (guest star Lesley Ann Warren) when she visits Will (Eric Roberts), her ex-boyfriend, in "Claude's Apartment." When Claude (Sara Rue) invites her new boyfriend (guest star William Ragsdale, "Herman's Head") home for dinner, Owen and Ramona (Andy Dick, Sherri Shepherd) advise her to do a quick makeover on the place.

9:30 p.m. on TBS

Saturday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
Movie: Disney's The Kid

A year before making this 2000 Disney comedy, Bruce Willis played opposite a little boy who saw dead people. Here, he's teamed with a youngster who sees something even scarier: his grown-up self. Willis plays a man about to turn 40 without much to show for it, thanks to his self-centeredness. Things change when he meets a boy (Spencer Breslin) who is his childhood self. Emily Mortimer and Lily Tomlin also star.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

XXVIII Summer Olympics

NBC's prime-time coverage from Athens is highlighted by swimming finals in four events: the men's 400-meter individual medley, featuring American world-record holder Michael Phelps, and 400-meter freestyle, and the women's 400-meter IM and 4x100-meter freestyle relay. Also, reigning all-around world champion Paul Hamm leads the U.S. team as men's gymnastics gets under way, and medals will be decided in men's synchronized platform diving.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: The League of Extraordinary Gentlemen

They aren't the X-Men, but another group of heroes saves the world via their unique talents in this fanciful 2003 adventure. Sean Connery heads the cast as explorer Allan Quatermain, who fights an Armageddon-plotting villain with help from Tom Sawyer (Shane West), Captain Nemo (Naseeruddin Shah), the Invisible Man (Tony Curran), Dr. Jekyll (Jason Flemyng) and ever-young Dorian Gray (Stuart Townsend). Peta Wilson also stars.

8 p.m. on TNN

Movie: Reservoir Dogs

Quentin Tarantino began to make a name for himself as a maverick writer-director with this effectively, memorably brutal 1992 crime drama. It follows several jewel thieves in the aftermath of a heist, with extensive flashbacks explaining how the robbery ended up as it did. The ideal cast includes Harvey Keitel, Tim Roth, Michael Madsen, Chris Penn, Steve Buscemi, 8-movie veteran Lawrence Tierney and Tarantino.

9 p.m. on TBS

Movie: Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me

The ultrahip detective, played again by Mike Myers, returns to his own place and time to pursue the sinister Dr. Evil in this often hilarious 1999 sequel. Heather Graham is a welcome addition as CIA operative Felicity Shagwell, but the real show stealer is Dr. Evil's clone, Mini-Me (Vernie Troyer).

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"THE PRINCE & ME": An engagingly modern twist on Cinderella, director Martha Coolidge's romantic comedy stars Julia Stiles as a Midwestern pre-med pupil who only has eyes for her textbooks until she meets a seemingly lazy exchange student (Luke Mably) who is the prince of Denmark. Their love-hate relationship eventually leans closer to love, but it's threatened when the young royal must return home to assume his duties. Miranda Richardson and James Fox co-star as his parents. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by Coolidge; "making-of" documentaries; deleted and extended scenes; outtakes; alternate ending. *** (PG, AS, P)
"JOHNSON FAMILY VACATION": Cedric the Entertainer plays the patriarch - actually, two of them, since he also portrays an uncle - in this periodically amusing National Lampoon's "Vacation"-like traveling spoof. The relatives can't even rely on their vehicle's onboard navigation system to get them out of the problems they encounter en route to a family reunion in Missouri. Vanessa Williams, Lil' Bow-Wow, Solange Knowles and Gabby Soleil play the others who are on the road; Steve Harvey, Shannon Elizabeth and Jennifer Freeman ("My Wife and Kids") also appear. DVD extras: audio commentary by Cedric the Entertainer, Lil' Bow-Wow and director Christopher Erskin; "making-of" documentary; deleted and extended scenes with optional audio commentary by Erskin; outtakes. ** (PG-13, AS, P, V)
"GOOD-BYE LENINI": An East German man (played by Daniel Brühl) has to decide how, or whether, to break some big news to his devoutly socialist mother (Katrin Sass)

Video Vantage

- that the Berlin Wall came down while she was in a coma - in director and co-writer Wolfgang Becker's comedy-drama, which interpolates fact into fiction quite well. Fearing a downturn in her health if Mori learns the truth, her son takes extraordinary measures to convince her that nothing changed during the period she wasn't conscious. DVD extras: audio commentary by Becker; "making-of" featurettes; deleted scenes. *** (R, AS, P)
"THE THREE STOOGES: GOOFS ON THE LOOSE": Moe, Larry and Curly are back in action - with all their "nyuk-nyuk" ready to go - in this compilation of four short subjects, which can be watched either in newly colorized versions or the original black-and-white. This disc includes "Men in Black," "The Sitter Downers," "Punch Drunks" and "Playing the Ponies." Also available is "THE THREE STOOGES: STOOGED AND CONFOUSED," which gathers another quartet of the Stooges' comedies. DVD extras: "Chromachoice" feature, permitting direct toggling between the color and black-and-white versions. *** (Not rated: V)
"NATIONAL LAMPOON PRESENTS DORM DAZE": You can probably guess the nature of the humor just by seeing the National Lampoon moniker on this comedy. A young college student (Chris Owen) in line for his first intimate encounter, thanks to his brother's (Patrick Renna) machinations, gets ensnared in a confusion of identities during the holiday season. The intended conquest, a prostitute (Bibi Ann Bliss), has the same name as a foreign-exchange student (Marie-Noelle Marquis). Let the mix-ups commence. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by producer-directors David Hillenbrand and Scott Hillenbrand, and editor Dave O'Brien; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; outtakes; music video. ** (R, AS, N, P)

"LATE NIGHT WITH CONAN O'BRIEN 10TH ANNIVERSARY SPECIAL": For someone whose chances of being successful in David Letterman's former NBC late-night slot were rated slim to none, former "Simpsons" writer-producer O'Brien has fared extremely well in building a loyal viewership and drawing top-flight guests. Many of those celebrities turn up in this compilation, celebrating O'Brien's first decade as a TV personality: highlights of the show's trademark sketches, including appearances by Triumph the Insult Comic Dog (who also has his own DVD out this week), are included. (Not rated: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"CONNE AND CARLA" (Aug. 17): Nia Vardalos - also the film's writer - and Toni Collette play friends who pose as male-posing-as-female performers. (PG-13, AS, P, V)
"GODSEND" (Aug. 17): Greg Kinnear and Rebecca Romijn-Stamos play a couple who come to regret having a doctor (Robert De Niro) clone their deceased son. (PG-13, AS, P, V)
"TAKING LIVES" (Aug. 17): An FBI profiler (Angelina Jolie) pursues a serial killer with a knack for adopting the identities of his victims; Ethan Hawke co-stars. (R, AS, P, V)
"THE GIRL NEXT DOOR" (Aug. 24): An impressionable teen (Emile Hirsch) falls for his gorgeous new neighbor (Elisha Cuthbert), a veteran of porn movies. (R and unrated versions: AS, P)
"LAWS OF ATTRACTION" (Aug. 24): Two divorce attorneys (Pierce Brosnan, Julianne Moore) end up married to each other while they clash over a case. (PG-13, AS, P)
"THE PASSION OF THE CHRIST" (Aug. 31): James Caviezel and Monica Bellucci star in director Mel Gibson's controversial dramatization of the final hours in the life of Jesus. (R, AS, GV)

Australian Ryan Kwanten surfs into 'Summerland'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

When the right actor meets the right character, it can be cinematic magic. That's what "Summerland" executive producer Stephen Tolkin believes happened when Sydney, Australia, native Ryan Kwanten was cast as surf-shop owner Jay Robertson on The WB Network's Tuesday-night family drama. "It's one of those things where you write a character," Tolkin says, "and you go, 'There was nobody else on the entire planet to play it. How did I know he existed, to have written it? How did I know?' It's the great god of casting that will lead you to the right people when you make the right offerings. It's alchemy."
"Summerland," which premiered in June, stars Lori Loughlin as Ava Gregory, a fashion designer who, together with her friends (Robertson, Merrin Dungey, Shawn Christian), takes over raising Ava's orphaned niece and nephews (Kay Panabaker, Jesse McCartney, Nick Benson).
As fans have learned so far, Jay is a former Aussie surfing champion knocked out of competition by a knee injury. He's currently working on building a relationship with Erica (Taylor Cole), a girl he broke up with a couple of years earlier. It's not easy, since monogamy doesn't come easy to the free-living Jay, as was evident in the show's first episode.

"I had my friends calling me after they'd seen the pilot," Kwanten recalls, "and they said, 'Tell me you're not writing the scripts. It was just ridiculous.' Three girls in the pilot. He's settled down a bit. He seems to have found a love, and that's good. He's hoping."
"I think he found true love early on with Erica, and just didn't know what he had. I think he initially cheated on her with one girl and has obviously realized that she means a lot more to him than just a boyfriend/girlfriend thing, but he has been reluctant to admit it."
"After dating a few more girls, he realized she's probably the one. Males, we're very slow on the uptake."
"This is where Ryan does a wonderful job," says Remi Aubuchon, Tolkin's fellow writer and executive producer, "because you can see the struggle that he's having all the time. He realizes it's not just a physical attraction anymore, there's something going on inside that he's never really experienced before."
Although Kwanten has captured the admiration of the producers (and female fans on two continents), he didn't plan on being an actor. As a kid, Kwanten was more interested in surfing and swimming (something he still tries to do every day in the waters near his Marina del Rey home).
His first foray into show business came as an accident while pursuing his other interests.
"I didn't want to be an actor," he says. "It was the furthest thing from my mind. I wanted to be a businessman, a lawyer. It was

He recounts being on his way to swimming practice - with his towel around his waist and goggles on his head - when his mother stopped off to allow his younger brother, a dancer, to audition for a casting agent. When the process dragged on and the time for the start of swim practice drew near, the 15-year-old Kwanten became impatient.
"I ran up the stairs to this audition place," he says. "I said to Mum, 'Look, drop me off and come back and get my brother.' As fate would have it, the lady comes out of the audition with my brother, and she says, 'Are you here for the audition as well?' I said, 'No, I'm going to swimming training. Here's my towel and goggles.' She said, 'Oh, come in, I'll audition you.' I said, 'No, I really don't know what I'm doing.'"
"To cut a long story short, I ended up getting in, and my brother didn't. But he's all right. He's moved on to bigger and better things."
Kwanten then did what may be some sort of legal requirement for Australian actors - a stint on the popular soap opera "Home and Away," alumni of which includes Simon Baker ("The Guardian"), Melissa George ("Alias"), Heath Ledger ("The Patriot"), "A Knight's Tale," Julian McMahon ("Nip/Tuck"), Guy Pearce ("L.A. Confidential," "Two Brothers") and Naomi Watts ("The Ring," "21 Grams").
"It seems to be a really good stepping stone for talent," Kwanten says. "For me, it was four years of acting school ... and of working with people who'd come out of acting school. Nothing against them at all, but some of them don't even know how to hit marks. They might know how to do Shakespeare back to front, but they can't hit a mark."
"For me, on-set experience is far more valuable than reading an acting book."
Kwanten's introduction to the United States came while promoting his ESPN made-for-TV movie, "The Junction Boys," a Australian-shot 2002 football saga starring Tom Berenger as legendary coach Bear Bryant.
"I had a one-week ticket to New York," Kwanten says. "I went to the premiere, then the executive producer of the film said, 'Look, you might want to hang around L.A. for pilot season, see if we could get you a pilot.' I didn't have that much money, so I put it on a credit card, just extended it week by week. Fortunately, this show came along and saved the day."
As a side note, if you see Jay surfing on "Summerland," most likely it's really Kwanten. You can tell by what he's wearing - or not.
"You know the ocean in California is not warm," Tolkin says, "and all of our characters, including the incredibly hardy stunt doubles, surf in wet suits. Ryan refused to surf in a wet suit. He surfs in Southern California, in the spring, not the summer, in board shorts.

"The stunt coordinator and everybody tried to talk him out of it, and he just insisted. And let me tell you, it looks great."

Ryan Kwanten stars as Jay Robertson, the Aussie owner of a Southern California surf shop, on The WB Network's family drama "Summerland," airing Tuesday.
